States No One Was Asked to Tell Tufts of Settlement of Claims

BOSTON, July 13.—David Stoneman, a Boston attorney, who is charged with having acted as the "go-between" in the transaction by which Hiram Abrams and other motion picture men settled for $100,000 possible litigation growing out of a midnight party at a Woburn roadhouse, testified before the supreme court today that he was unable to find in his diary any record of his connection with the Abrams case. Stoneman said the reason nothing appeared in the diary was because the case was settled so quickly.

The supreme court is sitting in trial on the charges of conspiracy in this transaction and other alleged irregularities on which Attorney General Allen seeks the removal of District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex county.

Employed By Abrams

The witness said he was employed by Abrams in May, 1917, about two months after the dinner at Mishawum Manor, the roadhouse conducted by "Brownie" Kennedy. He first learned of the Woburn party at a conference at Hotel Touraine where Abrams told him of a dinner given to "Fatty" Arbuckle, at the Copley Plaza on March 6, and said that afterward some members of the party went to Mishawum. Nothing was thought of the affair until an article appeared in a Boston newspaper and was brought to the attention of Mrs. Abrams. Stoneman was told, he said.

Corroborates Statements

The witness corroborated statements in Abrams' deposition that Abrams had come to Boston from Portland in response to a message from Mayor James M. Curley, who told him there was likely to be trouble, and that it was after a conference here.

The following morning Abrams and

CLOSING ARGUMENTS IN MURDER TRIAL

DEDHAM, July 13.—The jurors in the trial of Niccolò Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, charged with having shot down a paymaster and his guard during a robbery at South Braintree a year ago were asked in closing arguments by defense counsel today to dismiss from their minds all reference to the defendants as foreigners and radicals.

Fred H. Moore of Los Angeles, counsel for Sacco, said the question at issue was one of identification only. He asked the jury not to condemn the defendants as anarchists or as representing any class and further requested that there be drawn a line between the radical thinker and that type of anarchist who would drag into the mire his friends and compatriots.

Consciousness of Guilt
Mr. Moore then turned to the subject of consciousness of guilt, which he said the state would declare Sacco and Vanzetti showed when they lied under questioning after their arrest.

The defense admitted that the defendants lied at the time of arrest, but held that it was because they were conscious of guilt of something other than the crime alleged. He pointed to admissions by Sacco and Vanzetti that they had gone to Mexico in 1917 to avoid the military draft and said they were afraid of being caught on that score when they were arrested. They were conscious of guilt that night also because they were on an expedition to collect radical literature from their friends at a time when they felt that they would be deported or arrested if caught, he said.

Launched Out of Court
"If you were told 10 years ago," Mr. Moore said, "that in 1920 an American lawyer would advise his clients to get rid of books and papers of that character the man who told you that would have been laughed out of court."

Mr. Moore closed by asking the jury not to consider in finding their verdict any intermediate degrees of guilt, but to find the defendants innocent or guilty of murder in the first degree. The case called for no compromise, he said.

Moore attacked the credibility of the state witnesses who identified Sacco. In the course of this attack, he declared he wanted to state that the attitude of the district attorney's office during the case had been one of unflinching courtesy and fairness, but that the ancestry of some of the state evidence was subject to considerable question.

Condemns Itself
The testimony of Mrs. Lola R. Andrews, who identified Sacco as a man who was working on an automobile near the scene of, and shortly before, the murder, condemned itself, counsel asserted. So also he said the testimony of Louis Felsner, who said he saw the man who was "the dead image" of Sacco shooting Berardelli to death. Other witnesses also were criticized.

Mrs. Andrews' stories out of court had been shown to be radically different from her statements on the stand. Felsner admitted out of court that he lied and defense witnesses showed that Carlo Goodridge who said Sacco pointed a gun at him from the bandit car, told another tale before he came to court, counsel asserted.

ATTEMPT MADE TO ASSASSINATE

Report From Warsaw of Attack on Life of Polish President

Police Run to Earth a Plot to Overthrow the Government

Authorities Said to be Maintaining Utmost Reserve Regarding Affair

COPENHAGEN, July 13.—A despatch to the Berlingske Tidende, from Warsaw today reports an attempt to assassinate President Pilsudski of Poland. The despatch adds that the police have run down a plot to overthrow the Polish government.

The authorities, says the message, are maintaining the utmost reserve with regard to the affair, but it appears that a man had forced himself into President Pilsudski's room and fired several shots. A number of arrests have been made.

There is some similarity between the circumstances narrated in the foregoing despatches and those described in a Warsaw message of June 28, which told of an attempt by an apparently unbalanced man, to gain admission to the presidential palace in the Polish capital. Several shots were fired by the man, it was stated, after he had been refused admittance to the palace and while the police were overpowering him one member of the force was wounded.

Austrian Ace Seeks Man Who Placed Him at Death's Door

Lieut. Hrushka Learns in New York That Captain Becker Came Here

(Special to The Sun)
By Capt. Claude R. Collins, New York City Air Police Reserve
NEW YORK, July 13.—Is Capt. Becker, initials unknown, former flight leader of British Royal Air Forces in Lowell, Mass? If so, Lowell will be the stage for an odd climax to one of the most thrilling serial dramas of the world war. The finale of this unusual romance neared upon the arrival in New York of Lieut. Rudolph J. Hrushka, an ace in the Austrian army air forces. Lieut. Hrushka, accompanied by his pretty wife, daughter of the baroness Olga Youtierkrohn, Viennese operatic star, has come to America in search of the man who placed him on the borderland of death and brought to his side his titled bride-to-be, who nursed him back to life. Hrushka has learned, after a two-year hunt, that Capt. Becker of the R.A.F., pilot of the plane which sent him crashing to earth and his pilot to his doom on the fatal morning of Aug. 23, 1918. For nine months the Austrian ace lay in casts in a hospital at Styria. The first six months he was constantly on the verge

HOOKS PRIZE PICKEREL

Secretary of Local Cigar Makers' Union Lands Big Fish at Lakeview

Lowell fishermen are today paying tribute to Thomas F. Garvey of 71 Lily avenue for his success in landing yesterday afternoon what is considered the biggest pickerel ever taken out of Lake Mascopie. The pickerel measures 25 inches and weighs four and one-half pounds. It was caught at 2:45, in the cove opposite the pavilion at Lakeview near what is known as Old Trap Rock.

Mr. Garvey, who is the well known secretary of the local cigar makers' union, has had considerable success as a fisherman and had previously caught fairly large pickerel at Mascopie. But yesterday's haul was the prize of them all and he is naturally proud of the achievement.

He is now searching for a place to place the big fish on exhibition. Many interested anglers visited his residence this morning to get a glimpse at the big fellow. The accompanying cut shows Mr. Garvey holding his prize catch.

It was reported this morning that the catch had been made by Thomas F. Garvey, foreman in the health department yard, but this was not so. It was Mr. Garvey of Lily avenue.

The other Mr. Garvey received many congratulations this morning, but he referred all callers to his namesake and also extended his personal congratulations on the big catch.

MAINE MAN ARRESTED

Local Police Arrest Louis Dearborn — Woman and Child Detained

The arrest of Louis A. Dearborn, a painter of Bangor, Me., and the detention of a Mrs. Tibbetts of Newport, Me., and her seven-year-old child, by Officer Frank H. Murphy, assisted by Officer Edward F. Flanagan, as the couple reached Bridge street early this afternoon in a Dodge touring car, said to be the property of the woman's husband, created a stir here, and formed the climax of what is said to be a strange story of lawless romance. The sheriff of Newport, Me., telephoned to headquarters in this city early in the morning, stating that a Dodge car, Maine registration number 42128, was missing. The wife of the alleged owner was supposed to be in the car with her little girl, the child of a former marriage, and as it was stated that formerly she was a Lowell woman it was believed that the machine would head in this direction.

Shortly after midday Officer Murphy stopped a machine answering the description given by the Newport authorities, and found Dearborn at the wheel. Mrs. Tibbetts and her child were also occupants of the car, which was likewise laden with an assortment of articles including many kinds of wearing apparel. There were a sweater, raincoat, rug, suitcase, straw hat, sewing basket, and even an electric iron, together with a Tolly bear and several dolls for the little one.

It was found that Dearborn had no license to operate the auto, and on this technical charge he was locked up at the station house. Mrs. Tibbetts and the child were detained in care of the matron in the detention room, but no specific charge was lodged against the woman.

The machine was stained with mud and dust and the fragments of a light lunch were found on the floor of the tonneau. The machine was taken to the police garage, and the many articles which seemed to have been thrown into it hurriedly were removed to the inspectors' room. Communication was immediately established with the authorities in Maine, who were notified that the car was recovered, and the occupants held.

LABOR DAY OBSERVANCE

Trades and Labor Council Will Settle Celebration Question This Evening

The question of whether Lowell is to have an elaborate celebration on Labor day this year with a parade and other attractive features, or whether the day will pass as it has during several preceding years with a quiet observance, will be decided this evening at a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council.

The present unemployment situation existing here may have some effect on the decision of the delegates from the various local unions who will meet tonight to decide the question of a celebration. With from 6000 to 8000 people out of work here, as estimated by Timothy F. O'Rourke, president of the Trades and Labor Council, it is doubtful if the union men will care to go in for any extensive celebration. On the other hand, if a parade is held here Labor day it will serve to keep many Lowell people here who otherwise might spend the holiday out of town. In that way Lowell money would go to Lowell dealers instead of to the beaches and parks.

Rare Old Liquors Stolen Last Week From Wilder Street House Recovered by Police

Rare old liquors, some of them said to be so aged as to be well-nigh priceless, were recovered by the local police authorities this morning as the result of investigations made by Lieutenant David Petrie relative to a theft last week from the "cellar" of William E. Hall, a resident of Wilder street, corner of Princeton. Bertram E. Clark, found in bonds of $1000 for a hearing Friday on improper conduct charges, has admitted participating in the taking of the costly beverages, and this morning, accompanied by police officials, went to the Aiken street district and located the place where he said that part of the loot was sold. Eight bottles of assorted old-time booze, including champagne, gin, whiskey, brandy and vermouth, were brought in a box to headquarters, where it was placed under lock and key.

Later in the day an additional complaint was sworn out against Clark in the office of the clerk of the police court, charging him with breaking and entering, with larceny of liquors.

The story given out by the police is to the effect that Clark was employed at the Hall residence some days ago in painting the interior of the dwelling. It is alleged that while at work he "spotted" the liquors, which the owner of the house has had since long prior to prohibition. Later the supply of liquid refreshment was cleaned out, about twenty bottles of varied gold-labeled and tin-foil-stoppered brands being taken in all. Lieutenant David Petrie was placed in charge of the case, and not only secured evidence of Clark's complicity in the break, but also learned from a local lodging-house keeper information which led to the issuance of a complaint for improper conduct. of Charles Ray. Doris Kenyon, as the heroine, is called upon to do little acting. She has only to look sweet and pretty and, believe us, she fills all requirements in that direction.

The art decorations of the titles burlesque the play. Comic dogs are used as the decoration. They would go better with an animal comic than with a Tarkington picture.

ADVERTISING IN FILMS

The name or trade mark of some nationally advertised article is often displayed so prominently in a film that those who notice it cannot but wonder if the producer was paid for the display.

Such an instance occurs in "The Conquest of Canaan." The beau brunet of the town, just home from college, puts a punch in the punch. There was no bearing on the story. But it gives a title writer a chance to work in a line about a well known brand of lozenges that perfume the breath.

In 1905, when Tarkington wrote the story, that trade name was unknown. The scene is entirely superfluous. It cheapens the film. It is a travesty on Tarkington, the photodrama and art.

THIS NOVELTY HAS ITS COMPENSATIONS

BY RUTH AGNES ABELE

And now it has come to this! Paris has given us another suggestion—the Mon Homme (any man) grab to be used exclusively for dancing.

It would seem that Paris, believes it is all right to grab some choice specimen of masculinity while dancing. There really isn't anything unladylike about taking a death grip on his neck and a drowning woman's clutch just above his waist line, as long as there is music and one keeps moving. A few frivolous measures, a few slides and glides and a prize-fighter's clutch in the hands of lovely femininity—is so decorated that it can enter polite society unquestioned. Indeed it is welcomed.

And it is probably called at least an "innovation," perhaps even the "feature" of the party.

There is, in this, an element of consolation—the consolation found in having the tables turned.

It gives lovely woman her day—her glorious day in which to do the pulling, the rushing, the lashing of queer, unexpected hops and the backing of her partner miles around a dance floor in the name of grace.

She is given her day for making an impression on her partner by leaving an indelible on his spinal column. She is given her day to out walk him; prove right before the crowd on the floor that she is by three steps the better walker. She is given her day in which to mark how many times per step her arm shall fly up and down and whether or not it will be one or one million pounds of butter which could have been churned with the energy put into the arm action.

For in this Mon Homme—he is quite helpless, absolutely at her mercy. And what a consoling arrangement for dancing—for a change!

EXPECT OIL CO. TO START WORKING

TAMPAICO, Mexico, July 12.—(By the Associated Press)—Resumption of operations in the Tampico district by oil companies is expected in official circles here. Drilling permits are being granted daily by the government, and some companies have continued work during the past troublesome month without discharging a single man. It was declared yesterday by a government official that the situation here was not a local problem, but was the outcome of world conditions. He said that the new taxes placed on petroleum exports had but secondary influence on operations in this district.

Adventures of The Twins

"WHAT FOR?" MR. WEST WIND WANTED TO KNOW.

"Ho, ho!" shouted Mr. West Wind, "who's there?"

"Mr. Sprinkle-Blow and his helpers," answered Nick through the door. "Will you please come out?"

"What for?" Mr. West Wind wanted to know, but just the same he banged his front door open with his breath and came blustering out. "What for?"

Sprinkle-Blow told him the trouble. "Howdy Thunder and Jumpy Lightning are out," said he. "Howdy took his big bass drum and Jumpy took his dazzy flashlight and they escaped from the House of the Nuisance Fairies where I thought I had 'em locked up safe and sound, and they're down there (Sprinkle-Blow said "down" because you see West Wind's house was on a star high above the clouds).

"They're down there jumping 'round on the black clouds above the earth and scaring folks dreadfully. Why, Will Woodpecker tumbled clear out of the maple tree and Nancy and Nick here turned back somersaults they were so surprised."

"Well!" bellowed West Wind. He really tried to speak softly, but West Wind's slightest whisper was a roar. "What about it?"

"We want you to chase them away, please," said Nancy. "If you blow the black clouds away, they won't have anything to stand on and they'll have to go home."

"Ho, ho!" laughed West Wind delightedly. "That's just what I'll do. If there is anything that I love, it is to blow clouds around. Clouds are my specialty, you know. I blow 'em places and then I blow 'em away. Folks say I blow out the moon and the sun, but that's all wrong. I just blow clouds over their faces sometimes. I'll go at once and Thunder and Lightning will have to find another place to play for awhile."

In a flash he was gone and the next thing the travelers heard was a huffing and puffing sound that sounded all through the sky.

PRETTY BUSY MAN IS THE TRAFFIC OFFICER

Take the patience of Job, and the eye of a hawk. For the fellows who ride and the fellows who walk, Sturdy built that, not frightened by standing all day.

With a smile for the little ones crossing the way; Information for strangers that's brief and exact; Spice well with alertness and judgment and tact; An instinct like lightning, for "Go" and for "Stop"; Add a dash of good nature. Result: Traffic Cop.

If you put a nervous, impatient man in the place of Officer Frank J. Donovan, "traffic cop" at the depot, he would probably go crazy inside of an hour. Or if you put a cantankerous, angry fellow there, he undoubtedly would have killed the writer when he dodged to the center of the street, crowded with vehicles and pedestrians, all watching his signals, and announced that he sought an interview.

But, fortunately for him and for the throngs which pass the depot crossing in an endless stream, Officer Donovan is neither impatient nor of an unpleasant disposition. The best proof of this is that, although he doesn't want publicity, and seeks only to do his duty for duty's sake, quietly and unostentatiously, he listened affably to a volley of fool questions, and took it all in good part when he insisted on "writing him up" despite his protests.

The most interesting thing which struck the writer, however, was the fact that while he obstructed the officer's vision in one direction, and engaged him in conversation at the same time, he calmly gestured motor cars and people on foot without the remotest indication of a snag. The river of traffic flowed smoothly on. Edgar Allan Poe once offended an acquaintance by writing while the latter was conversing with him. The poet, finally perceiving his friend's pique, explained that he was "dividing his mind." This, Poe explained, was a salutary mental exercise which involved paying close and polite attention to his friend's remarks while at the same time composing an intelligible letter. Officer Donovan may not be a poet; but he has certainly acquired the faculty for which Poe strove. Perhaps this is a secret which all good traffic officers have mastered, for time and again one sees them giving courteous ear to a questioner who wishes to be directed to some street, and simultaneously regulating the autos and foot-passers. In his ignorance, the writer did not gain a full realization of this remarkable ability until it was explained by Officer Donovan. He thought that his guidance of traffic must have become mechanical. But Officer Donovan explained: "You cannot hold this job mechanically. When the time comes that such is possible, they will have machines to do the job," he said. "It's necessary to keep thinking at all times. For example, suppose a slow-moving car is near, and a rapidly-moving machine is a little farther away. There's no way I know of to decide which to halt and which to let by, except thinking."

A. Rounsime curved around the square in what seemed to me a rather uncomfortable proximity. "Don't you ever come near getting hit?" he was asked. For answer he pointed downward, where his stand exhibited spinning top edges. "I've had a few narrow shaves, all right," he replied calmly. "You see, a machine went over this. But when it did, I had moved to some-such a thing as there being a low-speed limit as well as a high-speed one. One old fellow said, Officer Donovan related, "Some places they give a car if you go more than 25 miles an hour, and some places they hop on you if you go less than 25 miles an hour." You'll have to agree that there's some justification for being confused under such circumstances.

Officer Donovan is a tall, apple man, with eyes which twinkle in good humored fashion behind his glasses. It's a mystery what on earth he needs glasses for. Certainly not for shortsightedness. Maybe they reflect things in back of him, for he actually seems to be able to see on all sides of the square at once. He has been four years at his present station, after spending fourteen on a route.

Traffic grew faster and more furious. Without losing a particle of his equanimity or his evenness of temper, Officer Donovan kept everything moving. Two little girls were on the sidewalk in front of the Richardson hotel. They flashed him a smile and waved their hands to him as he saw to it that they got across safely. What a job! We talk of careers, and opportunities for service, and a lot of similar high-sounding things, but what one of us can say that we do more for the world than this blue-coated "traffic cop," protector and friend of little children in the rush and swirl of money-grubbing city life? Now machines were skimming by; Officer Donovan was semaphored now right, now left, now directly in the front. Never an instant's indecision or hesitation. How does he do it? Yet, thick as the traffic was, it must ordinarily be thicker; for Thorndike street was closed, underrating repairs.

Police Capture "Airplane Burglars"

NEW YORK, July 13.—Four men, declared by police to be the "airplane burglars" who have perpetrated a series of silk robberies on upper floors of loft buildings, were captured early today on the roof of a 20-story building. One of the quartet was suspended by a rope to the level of the 12th floor when police searched the roof. The aerial robber had kicked a window out and was preparing to enter the establishment of David Herstein, merchant, where a large quantity of silk was stored.

CAN YOU WEAR BLACK?

KEEP COOL

BY MARIAN HALE
NEW YORK, July 13.—Despite the perils of wearing black, which are pointed out to every woman, this sombre hue seems to be in the ascendency for the coming fall and winter in the softer materials and silks.

Every woman probably has been told by some kind friend or relative at some time in her life that she is either too young or too old to wear black. Now that women never get old—the fashion dictator has assumed the responsibility of forecasting a black year, the first for some time.

The black vogue is, however, in silks and the softer materials, which are used in afternoon and evening gowns.

Among the new fabrics satin-faced crepe bids fair to hold first place. This is partly due to its good wearing qualities and partly to the soft gracefulness of its draped lines. Of course, crepe de chine refuses to give way an inch in the running.

A handsome and heavy silk crepe which is popular this summer and which is being shown in the advance styles for fall and winter is Roshanara crepe.

One of Grauer Bros.' most attractive afternoon gowns for the coming season is this one of handsome satin-faced black canton crepe. The waist is slightly bloused above a draped belt.

Pleated panels which hang longer than the skirt at the sides, are attached to the gown by large fringe cabochons and silk tassels.

The sleeve is unusual, being a modified kimono set on with small buttons of the satin-faced crepe and finished at the elbow with the fringe cabochons.

Tufts Case
Continued

Walter Green went to Cambridge with Coakley to endeavor to convince District Attorney Tufts that they were men of good standing. Mr. Stoneham said, Abrams told him he said that Tufts told them he would make further investigation as to their innocence. Abrams said further, according to the witness, that Coakley wanted a retainer of $10,000 and later withdrew from the case.

Ironclad Releases

In discussing the case with Coakley, Stoneham said that he insisted on "ironclad" releases from all the women so that his clients could not be troubled again. Coakley first asked that the agreement should say as many releases as he could obtain, but later agreed to procure all releases. A cheque payable to Levenson & Levenson was given several days later, Stoneham said. The money was to be distributed among several lawyers. Stoneham got $3000. Coakley told him that he had retained $25,000 for himself, the witness said in answer to questions.

Stoneham said he did not ask Coakley the names of the women involved in the affair. He said he assumed they were women of the underworld.

Tufts Not Vindictive

Stoneham testified that in an interview with Coakley on May 22, the latter said in discussing his visit to the district attorney's office with the moving picture men, that Mr. Tufts was not vindictive but was courteous and fair, and that he (Coakley) thought that if he had been able to clear up the civil end of the matter, he would have been able to settle it.

"Did Mr. Coakley say in any form that your clients were likely to be indicted?" asked Mr. Hurlburt.

"I don't think so," replied Stoneham. "He told me that when Mr. Tufts had spoken of a grand jury investigation he had asked for time, and that Mr. Tufts said he was willing to give it."

Teresa M. Sears, now Mrs. Louis Robicheau, former piano player at Mithawm Manor, whose name is attached to one of the four legal "releases," for which the "movie" magazines are alleged to have paid $100,000, swore on the witness stand yesterday afternoon that the only legal paper she ever signed was so folded that she could not read it, and that she never received any money except witness fees for testifying in the Woburn court.

Besides Mrs. Robicheau the only witnesses who testified following Joseph M. Levenson, for 10 years counsel for Hiram Abrams of the Paramount Pictures company, were former Councilor Charles H. Wright of Chicopee, State Police Officer Thomas A. Thompson

Mr. Packard Owner!

WE'VE always been mighty proud of that twin-six engine of ours—we Packard boosters. And I, personally, haven't been especially bashful and retiring in telling people about its performances.

Which makes my tale sadder! My cousin Tom from Worcester came to town last Wednesday in his 1917 Runwell Six and we drove our respective families out to Brookline to call Sunday afternoon.

Coming along to Corey Hill Tom suggested a race up the hill. I took him on with a poor attempt to hide a smile. But I had no smile to hide when we reached the top. Tom's old Runwell made it about fifty yards sooner than my comparatively new Packard.

When we reached our destination Tom told me all about it. "The simplest thing in the world," he said, "just an eight-ounce can of FAM-O poured into my gas tank before I left home. It cleared away the accumulated carbon on my way down and put new life into my engine. And now I'm getting almost 30 per cent more mileage from my gas."

I thought of the money I had spent—at my service station—having carbon removed, and knew that had been my trouble in the race up Corey Hill.

Need I say that a few days later I raced Tom again up the hill. And I almost lost sight of him he was so far in the rear. FAM-O did it! Surest thing you know! And anyhow you and I know that you can't beat a Packard motor when it's running true to form. 8 oz. $1.00, 1 gal. $12.00 at all dealers. GORDON MFG. Co., Foxboro, Mass.

SAYS ROBBERS TOOK JEWELRY

Salesman Claims Bandits Held Him up and Secured $80,000 in Property

Police Say That Victim Shows No Signs of Violent Treatment

SPRINGFIELD, July 13.—The automobile of Louis Cluck, Boston jewelry salesman, in which he says he was held up near Hartford, Conn., last evening and robbed of jewelry, the value of which he places at between $80,000 and $85,000, was found at a roadside half a mile west of Palmer, at 3 o'clock this morning. The car, with lights burning, was headed toward this city.

Cluck was closely questioned by the police from the time he reported the holdup, around 2 o'clock this morning, for several hours and the investigation is being continued, as the police say the case presents several puzzling features.

Cluck halted the drivers of two New Haven, Conn., trucks near the southern boundary of the city, about 1 o'clock this morning. His hands and feet were bound and he said he had been gagged. He said that he left this city for Hartford early last evening, and when near Hartford, was stopped by three men in an automobile. One of them, he said, struck him so violently last he lost consciousness and when he regained it, several hours later, he was in some woods near where he was picked up by the New Haven truck drivers. His hands were tied in front of him, so he was able to remove the gag.

The police say Cluck showed no marks of any violence. He told them,

Erie Railroad engine drivers, who have achieved a certain standard in the care and handling of their engines, are elected to the Order of the Red Spot and a red spot is placed on the locomotive of the driver. A second degree of the order provides for the substitution of the engineer's name in gold letters for the number plate on his cab, they say, that the jewelry, including unset diamonds and pearls was in a safe case and was not insured. He said the holdup men took an automatic pistol from him. He is employed by the United Jewelry Co. of Hanover street, Boston.

TO PUT ON SOLID FLESH

What to eat to put vitamins in your system, increase your weight and make you strong. Scientists tell how vitamin-containing vegetables, such as lettuce, spinach and apples build weight and strength.

You cannot possess a fine figure, elegant appearance, have good color and be strong and robust-looking skins and peels of fruit and vegetables and the hulls of grain so as to get a sufficient quantity of vitamins in your blood and system as nature intended you should do, then you should eat plenty of vitamin-containing foods, such as lettuce, spinach and apples and assist them from time to time with your meals with a little harmless, palatable "MEDIC-YEST," which is rich in firm flesh-building vitamins like the vitamins in your blood. It means to one of these creatures the cow, ox and horse get in the green grass at pasture. You know what the little blade of grass with its vitamins means to you. When you get thin, pale, skinned and ugly-looking, do not wait, but take some MEDIC-YEST regularly. Increase your weight to normal with solid, firm, stay-the-shrinken tissues and aid nature in making you strong, well and fully developed. You owe it to yourself to make this simple test. Weigh and measure yourself. Next take MEDIC-YEST with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again. Each week the scales, mirror and tape measure won't deceive you. When you are satisfied with your gain in weight, energy and strength tell your friends about MEDIC-YEST Tonic Tablets and what they will do for them. MEDIC-YEST should not be taken by anyone who objects to having their weight increase to normal. Fred Howard and A. W. Dows carry MEDIC-YEST. Your own druggist has it or can quickly procure it for you. For many reasons no other yeast can take its place. Results absolutely guaranteed or money refunded by the manufacturers—Adv.

Beaverdale, Citizens Tell Police They Will Have to Protect "Foreigners"

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 13.—Many town near here late last night following a mass meeting of American citizens who are being harassed by the intention of driving out the undesirable foreign element alleged to have been responsible for numerous crimes committed at Beaverdale within the last few months.

State police on duty at Beaverdale attended the meeting and were told, it is reported that the objectionable element may be the communists. "If they do not," the speaker is reported as saying, "you policemen may stay here and protect them but we will get them sooner or later, perhaps tonight, even against your opposition."

The state troopers, according to the reports, advised those against whom feeling ran high, to leave the town and an exodus began which is said to have proceeded quietly.

Five buildings were dynamited and a number of foreign residents driven from their homes Monday night, according to reports received from Beaverdale authorities.

VACATION SEASON IN FULL SWING

This is the season when Lowell people are gleefully packing up their trunks and bidding adieu to the sweltering city. The vacation season is in full swing. Officials of the Boston & Maine railroad reported that statistics for this year comes very close to establishing a record for the number of vacationists leaving the city.

For two weeks the men who handle the baggage at the Middlesex street depot have been deluged with a steady stream of trunks, bags and luggage of all kinds. The beaches seem to be more popular with vacationists than ever. Old Orchard, Hampton and Ocean Park being in the lead. Later an exodus to the mountains is expected. The mountain travel is always heavier later in the season than it is during the early summer months, railroad officials say.

Preparations are being made for a record rush during the first part of August for it is then that the vacation travel is heaviest and from all indications the Boston & Maine trains will carry capacity loads during that period.

Local steamship offices also report a good business. Lowell people do not go in for ocean travel as extensively as do the people from the bigger cities but the coastwise trade between Boston and New York has been well patronized. Nova Scotia and other points to the north are also popular.

Forty Polish residents of this city will leave this evening for New York city where they will board a Red Star liner for Poland. They will spend the summer in the old country after which most of them are expected to return. This is the first opportunity that has been given to local Poles for visiting their mother country and these forty people are joyfully taking advantage of it.

FIRST HOLIDAY FOR D. L. PAGE COMPANY

Since its organization over 50 years ago the D. L. Page Co. has never closed its doors during the day, not even on Sunday or holidays, but tomorrow will be an exception to the rule, for the establishment will shut down tonight not to reopen again until Friday morning. The reason for the shut-down will be the first annual outing of the employees of the company, which will be conducted at the expense of the concern.

The affair will be for all employees of the company, their wives and children and the outing will be held at Salisbury beach. There will be about 120 and 140 men, women and children will participate and all are scheduled to leave the restaurant in Merrimack square at 8.30 o'clock tomorrow morning. The trip to the seashore will be made in automobiles, fourteen touring cars having been chartered for the occasion.

ANGEL GUARDIAN SODALITY OUTING

All is in readiness for the 21st annual outing of the Angel Guardian sodality of St. Joseph's parish, which will be held at Canobie lake park tomorrow, weather permitting. Five cars of the Massachusetts Northeastern Street Railway Co. have been chartered to convey the excursionists to the grounds, the start to be made from in front of St. Joseph's college in Merrimack street at 8 a. m.

A varied program of sports has been prepared for the occasion and those in charge propose to give the little ones and adults who will attend, the time of their lives. Basketball, football, baseball and the return trip will be made at 4.15 p. m. The arrangements are in charge of the spiritual director of the sodality, Rev. Aurelien Mercet, O. M. liquor brigade, were asked by the Tyngsboro authorities to assist them in making an unexpected visitation to the estate, said to have been engaged by parties unknown, as a road house, and to have been distinguished by joyous gatherings of autoists numbering Lowell people and residents of other localities. During the past months, it is stated, complaints have been registered against the happenings at the house, and the joint raid by the local officers and the Tyngsboro police was a clean-up of the alleged headquarters for sub rosa parties with men not unknown to the public eye as participants.

But somebody, apparently, had "tipped off" the occupants. When the descent was made upon the building, instead of a mad rush by merry-makers for windows and other means of exit, a dead silence greeted the invaders. Information was received to the effect that a short time before the officers approached these in possession folded their tents like the Arabs and silently stole away, or as silently as their motor trucks and other means of conveyance would let them. Information was also unearthed indicating that $10 a month had been paid as rent for the estate.

Two girls, whose names are withheld, were the only persons present when the visitation was made. The pair, who stated that they are from Boston, told the officers the names of alleged patrons of the resort, and learned names were carefully noted by the representatives of the law. What action, if any, is to be taken, was not revealed, but it is stated definitely that professional men of this city, as well as of Nashua, N. H., may be involved.

After the two girls had given their information to the raiders they were released, as a specific charge was made against them. It is understood that they claimed that other young women have been at the house, but departed when the "tip" came.

Pettie which led to the finding of the liquor this morning in the Aiken street district, where Clark was taken handcuffed to point out the place it was disposed of. It is hoped by the authorities that the greater part of the rare and valuable wet goods will be recovered.

Hall, a young man of neat and intelligent appearance, was called shortly before noon today, and left the police station in company with his bondsmen. Prior to his release, he was for a time closeted with members of the force in the inspectors' room. He was taken into custody by Lieut. Pettie in the early hours of this morning, after a warrant had been sworn out against him on the improper conduct charge. It is stated that he then made admissions relative to the theft of liquors, after questioning.

USE OF ABBREVIATION LEADS TO CHARGES

NEW YORK, July 13.—The use of the abbreviation "Col." in what purported to be the signature of the late Theodore Roosevelt is one of the reasons for the preferring of a charge of forgery against Mrs. Emma Richardson Hurst of Hillsdale, Ind. She has tried to collect $69,000 from the Roosevelt estate on a note she says was endorsed by the colonial and signed during the progressive convention at Chicago in 1912 by Charles J. Shunson, whom she described as a former Rough Rider.

Assistant District Attorney Doelling of New York who has been investigating the matter in behalf of the Roosevelt family, said today that members of the family told him the colonial never used the title in his signature.

Investigation also revealed, Mr. Doelling said, that Mr. Roosevelt went without sleep for 80 consecutive hours while in Chicago in 1912; that members of the family were with him throughout that period, and that none of them saw him sign a document of any kind.

Some of the Rough Riders have failed to disclose any Charles J. Shunson, Mr. Doelling says.

ACTION IS DEFERRED ON PERJURY CHARGE

The case of Antonios Christofleas, charged with perjury and arrested yesterday morning in open court at the local police court session, by order of Judge Enright, had his case continued today to July 23. Judge Enright explained that the case is the first of its kind to come before the court here, and that he wished to confer relative to its disposition with the Boston authorities. In the latter city, he stated, there have been a number of such cases in the police court.

Christofleas testified yesterday in the case of John Strogles, charged with illegal keeping of intoxicating liquor, that moonshine found on the latter's premises really had been left there by himself. As he added that he came for his hooch and found it gone one day prior to the time the liquor raiders actually descended upon Strogles' establishment, he was arrested for perjury, on order of His Honor, who declared "this perjury has got to stop."

Christofleas was held in bonds of $500. Surety was furnished.

Other Cases Called

The case of Albanie R. Dion, charged with receiving stolen property July 23, 1920, was put over to tomorrow. The complaint alleges that he accepted cigars, money, candy, bananas, gum and other goods to the value of $5.50. He recently surrendered himself after the police had been searching for him for nearly a year.

The case of Henry A. Coburn, charged with non-support of his wife, was put over to July 16. Two drunkennes cases were filed.

Everett Ellis, held on a complaint lodged by a girl, had his case continued for a week. He pleaded not guilty, and bonds were fixed at $500.

LIQUOR FINES NEAR THE $1000 MARK

Another aftermath of the recent wholesale raids by the liquor officers was the case of John Ahi, heard in the police court this morning on charges of illegally keeping liquor, and fined $100. Pleas by the defendant's counsel that the minimum fine of $100 be imposed were in vain. It was stated by Ahi's attorney that the former had promised to cease his violations of the law. But Judge Enright referred to evidence that peculiar circumstances of aggravation have existed, and that Ahi, in effect, been defying the law, as many complaints have been lodged against his place during the past months. Yesterday several hundred dollars were collected in fines, and today's fine sends the total soaring the $1000 mark.

NO ACTION TAKEN ON JEWELERS' PETITION

No final action has yet been taken by the license commission, relative to the petition of the local Retail Jewelers' association that auctioneers be compelled to observe the regular business hours of stores here. At last evening's meeting, however, the matter was discussed with Frank Ricard, prominent local jeweler and official of the association, and also with auctioneers who have done business in this city. No indication of the decision to be adopted by the members of the board was made.

The following minor permits were granted: To sell ice cream on the Lord's day, Mary Marshall, 33 Third avenue, Kenosha, Zerkowles, 41 Adams street, D. Prize for Sinking of Jap Warship PATERSON, N. J., July 13.—The first American crew to capture or sink a Japanese warship in event of a war between the United States and Japan, would receive a prize of 5000 German marks by the will of Charles O. H. Fritzsche, former Paterson engineer, made public today. It was received here from Dresden, Germany, where Mr. Fritzsche died on January 1st. The will, made on April 10, 1910, creates a 5000 mark trust fund, the income of which is to go to buy firewood for the poor of Paterson, unless this country gets into war with Japan. Then the principal is to go for the prize.

SUMMONSES FOR LAUNDRY MEN

(Special to The Sun)
STATE HOUSE, Boston, July 13.—The commission on the necessities of life will soon issue summonses to all laundry men in the state to appear before it at the state house if they have not already complied with the request sent out by the commission as to their prices and cost.

It is alleged that the laundry men have been profiteering and the commission ordered them to file figures not later than last Monday. Many failed to do so and unless they file them by next Saturday they will be compelled to appear at the state house.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 13.—The bulk of the delegates to the grand lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks were spectators today at the drill team contest at Exposition park, while the executive officers were considering selection of a site for the projected $2,500,000 national headquarters of the order, and whether a national publication should be established. BICYCLIST HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Endore Laroche, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector G. Laroche of Moody St., Pawtucketville, had a narrow escape from serious injury this forenoon, when the bicycle he was riding was wrecked at the junction of Merrimack and John streets by an automobile truck. The boy was riding towards city hall on the right hand side of Merrimack st. when at the junction of John street he slowed down to allow a truck to go by. Following the truck was another big truck, which was rounding the corner pretty fast. In order to avoid being struck by the second truck, the boy jumped the wheels of the machine passed over his bicycle, wrecking it. The name of the driver of the truck could not be learned.

Use of Public Schools Barred keynote of the solicitor's opinion which will act as a bar to the invasion of foreign languages into the elementary grades of the city's schools. In the high school, of course, there is a natural demand for instruction in modern languages but by the time they reach high school most children have American ideals and the American language firmly implanted in their minds.

Even though the local Lithuanians planned to have instruction given by public officers, Mr. Regan doubts the validity and propriety of the expenditure of public money for such a purpose. He says it is clear that the people of the commonwealth through the formal language employed in the constitution have expressly prohibited the use of public school property for any purpose other than public purposes directly controlled and supervised by public officers.

The solicitor's opinion will come formally before the school committee at its next meeting and it is probable that the petitioners who sought the use of the Charles street school will be denied their prayer.

Mr. Regan's opinion, which in the estimation of school department officials, will prove an important hindrance to the aspirations of foreign-born people to have their children instructed in their own language before they receive instruction in English, is in detail as follows:

To the School Committee, Lowell, Mass. Gentlemen:

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your query made through Hugh J. Molloy, superintendent of schools, regarding the validity of granting the request of certain citizens of Lowell, who claim to represent five Lithuanian societies—said request being in the form of a petition, praying for the use of certain school room or rooms in a public school in the city of Lowell, during the summer months for the purpose of teaching their children to read and write in the Lithuanian language.

On the date of July 12, 1921, gave to your committee an opinion that you had no authority to grant the use of any school for private school uses, or for purposes other than those authorized for public school purposes.

I beg to call to your attention section 2 of article 16 of the constitution of the commonwealth, which in part is as follows:

... and no grant, appropriation or use of public money or property or loan of public credit shall be made or authorized by the legislature or any political division thereof for the purpose of founding, maintaining or aiding any school or institution of learning, whether under the control or otherwise, wherein any denominational doctrine is inculcated, or any other school, or any college, infirmary, hospital, institution, or educational, charitable, or religious undertaking which is not publicly owned and under the exclusive control, order and supervision of the public officers or public agents authorized by the commonwealth or federal authority, or both.

It is clear that the people of the commonwealth, through the formal language employed in the constitution have expressly prohibited the use of public school property for any purpose other than public purposes directly controlled and supervised by public officers.

The petition addressed to the school committee requests the use of a school building or part thereof for teaching during the summer months a foreign language and it appears in the petition that this work is to be done by other than public officers. Even if this work were to be done by public officers, the validity as well as the propriety of such an expenditure of public money might seriously be questioned.

In conclusion I would advise your committee that it has no authority to grant the use of the property of the city, real or otherwise, in the committee's custody and control for any purpose other than public school purposes. Therefore, it is my opinion that you have no right or authority to grant the prayer of said petition.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM D. REGAN,
City Solicitor.

THE DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE
Disarmament as favored by Senator Borah may soon reach the realm of discussion between the United States and other great nations. The invitation of President Harding to such a conference has been accepted by England and France and is likely to be accepted by Japan and Italy.

In the discussion of the question in the London press, it appears that various questions constituting international barriers, must first be removed and that then disarmament will come automatically.

There is no general definition as to what is implied in this term "disarmament" so freely used in the agitation. The United States uses it in reference to limitation of naval armaments and despite the fact that neither England nor France would consider a reduction of their land forces, yet the United States has acted independently and reduced its army to 150,000.

Judging from the ecia with which the announced acceptance of the president's invitation was received in London, it is quite probable that this movement will be made the pretext for luring the United States into some of the leading international controversies.

It is quite probable that among the things to be discussed before disarmament, will be the open door in China, Shanghai, Yape, the near eastern conflict, and the fact of the chief issues that distract the world today. With the exception of the Bolshevism of Russia and the Irish question, an effort will be made to convert the conference into a sort of executive council of the League of Nations or a body having the same purpose. Apparently the allied powers would retain the League of Nations council or abolish it and establish a new organization acceptable to the United States, so anxious are they to have this nation join them in upholding their power and rehabilitating the war-worn world.

It is noticeable that the greatest possible deference is shown this disarmament movement in London as British statesmen are most anxious to get into closer relations with the United States. In reference to their motive, there need be no misconception as to its character. It is not altruistic, nor is it based upon the desire to comply with the wishes of the United States from a humanitarian point of view.

no, their aim, as usual, is to promote the interests of the British empire and in addition to give the rest of the world to understand that Uncle Sam stands at John Bull's side ready to aid him in any emergency. Even the moral force of the United States behind England would greatly increase its power throughout the world; but the United States cannot be a party to oppression, or the exploitation of defenceless peoples.

STAND UP FOR NEW ENGLAND
This is the time to boom New England interests when, according to Governor Cox, the tariff bill before congress discriminates against New England industries. The port of Boston is discriminated against in various ways both in railroad and shipping matters. These conditions will not be remedied unless the people concerned fight for their own protection. It is up to New England, up to her cities and towns and her chambers of commerce to see that no law shall be passed at Washington to cast a blight upon such industrial cities as Lowell, Lawrence, Fall River, New Bedford and Worcester. Boston should be able to take care of herself, but apparently she is not, as much business that should pass through the port of Boston is diverted to New York.

It is high time to boom New England and to defend her industries; but for Lowell, it is necessary for her citizens to boom her industries, her resources, her factories, and her quiet, peaceable and industrious people.

It is in order to get new industries started here to aid those we already have by offering more employment which will benefit all. We have ideal factory sites along the Merrimack and Concord rivers; and it is the duty of our municipal council, our chamber of commerce and every other interest to induce new enterprises to locate here. We have the greatest textile school in the world, one of the greatest machine shops for the manufacture of textile machinery; and with varied industries of other lines, Lowell is one of the greatest factory cities of New England.

REVIVING THE LEAGUE ISSUE
There is some talk of having the Versailles treaty resubmitted in order to have it so modified as to be acceptable to the United States. In that case, the League of Nations would be either eliminated or modified and called by another name. President Harding is pledged to form an association of nations for promoting peace; and this would enable him to save his face.

England is trying in every way possible to induce the United States to join the allied powers in straightening out the European tangle. It may be this object that induced Lloyd George to seek a settlement of the Irish question as a means of placating the enemies of the League of Nations in this country.

Senator Walsh in a recent speech declared that the United States would enter no alliance with any foreign nation until the evidence is clear that it will be built upon the rocks of liberty and justice for all peoples everywhere and that its purpose shall be beyond question to preserve peace and good will in the world. The international court of justice appears to be established only for the members of the League of Nations and its functions are denied to other nations even where there is the most indisputable evidence of injustice and oppression. That cannot properly be termed a court of international justice. Its functions must be extended before it deserves the title given it.

PEACE IN IRELAND
One of the most hopeful symptoms of a change in sentiment in Ireland is seen in the absence of any serious rioting in Belfast on the twelfth of July. The Orangemen paraded through the streets according to their program, put their orange arches across the

Pretty Good, We'll Say
An English farmer had for a long time been petitioning the local council to fill up a deep mud hole on the common before his house, but without result. One very wet night, as he was seated comfortably before his fire, a cry for help was heard from the outside. The farmer, seizing a lantern, opened the door and peered out into the darkness, to find that three councilors on their way home from a meeting, had missed their way across the common and were now struggling in the mud hole. "Well, gentlemen," said the son of the soil, as he surveyed them grimly, "I am glad to see you stirring in this matter at last."

The Lost Ticket
Ever go to the theatre, baseball game or make a trip, and then discover your ticket was missing? Ever hunt through your pockets, do it again and then once more without success? It's a terrible sensation. The only thing to do is to ask some "copper" to search you. This was proven at the Oakland mole. Railroad detective R. Hughes saw a well-dressed Japanese man running wildly around the local electric trains at the mole, followed by two excited and voluble countrymen. Hughes questioned the excited man and learned that he had come to the mole on a local train to take a train to Chicago and had lost his ticket. He was trying to find the car which had carried him to the mole. Hughes found it, but the ticket was not found in the car. The Japanese was overcome. He would miss his train, and the money for his ticket had been paid.

"Looked through your pockets?" asked Hughes. "O, yes. Three times." "Mind if I look?" asked Hughes. "Sank you, please!"

So Hughes "frisked" the traveler and found the ticket in the inside pocket of his overcoat.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Before and After

When Phyllis stumbled now, since we together until death must be, I clasp my lips together tightly and may not exclaim (and she sighs):

"Good gosh! As often as you've been along this path with clinders in. You seem incapable of knowing they're there—please watch where you are going!"—FARM LIFE.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

A member of the local police force who read our little article on Lieutenant Dave Petrie's familiarity with the numerous devices of carnival fakirs for "typping" the public, volunteers an instance of the lieutenant's skill, which was observed at the recent celebration on the South common. It appears that at one booth an "electrical horse race" was being shown. The person betting on the horse nearest the finishing mark when the wheel holding all the horses stopped, was entitled to a prize. The lieutenant, watching the wheel, noted after a bit that the horse having the smallest amount bet on him was invariably the victor. He also noted that just prior to the time the wheel ceased revolving, the proprietor of the booth leaned nonchalantly against a nearby stand. "I think I'll try spinning the wheel myself," remarked Dave, and entered the booth. He turned the switch, and the horses started to move. They continued to move for some three minutes, a much longer time than they had been revolving while the "horse" had been on the job. Then, starting the wheel again, the lieutenant tried leading against the same place as had the proprietor. Instantly the wheel

SMALL BODY OF QUAKERS

Numbering About 115,000, They Are Distributed From Coast to Coast

RICHMOND, Ind., July 13.—What are the present activities of the Quakers, has been asked recently. Numerically, "the Friends of America," as they are called are a small body numbering about 115,000 but distributed from coast to coast.

On the Atlantic coast are New England, New York, Pennsylvania, Baltimore and North Carolina yearly meetings; on the Pacific coast, California and Oregon yearly meetings, the latter extending into Washington and Idaho. Inland states in which Friends are well represented are Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and Kansas.

American Quakerism has two capitals, the older and more conservative at Philadelphia, the newer at Richmond, Va. Within a radius of 100 miles of Richmond are to be found approximately one-fourth of American Quakers.

While intensely individualistic in principles and practices, Friends are learning how to unite for accomplishing work while tasks. Otherwise they could not have joined so readily in perfecting the machinery of the American Friends Service committee, with headquarters at Philadelphia, which has done a monumental relief work in Europe.

The majority of American yearly meetings are united in a national organization, the Five Years Meeting of Friends in America, which carries on a comprehensive and growing work at home and abroad. The headquarters of this organization are located in Richmond, where the executive staff of the national boards are housed in their own office building.

Friends have long been active in foreign mission work. Few as they are in numbers, their missionary efforts well nigh encircle the globe, including work in Japan, China, India, Africa, Syria, Mexico, Central America, Cuba and Jamaica.

At home the principal concern of Friends is for the cause of international peace and good will. Theirs is regarded here as the only religious body having a national board on peace. Just now it is very active in the fight for universal disarmament.

In addition to a number of private secondary schools, Quakers support ten colleges, not including Bryn Mawr, which is controlled by a board of trustees composed of Quakers.

One of the big events of the Quaker year is the annual summer conference of Young Friends conducted at Earlham college, Richmond, under the auspices of the Young Friends Board of the Five Years meeting. It is attended by young Quaker men and women from all parts of the country.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE ALUMNI PRESIDENT

Joseph F. Montminy, the well known jeweler, was last evening unanimously chosen president of St. Joseph's college alumni for the ensuing year at a meeting of the organization, which was held in the college hall in Merrimack street. There was a large attendance and the plans for the annual outing, which will be held Aug. 11 at the Gorton club camp in Tyngsboro were perfected.

The other officers chosen without opposition were as follows: Adelford Lequin, vice president; Arthur H. Giroux, financial secretary; Joseph Bergeron, recording secretary; Victor Alexander, assistant recording secretary; Emil Lemire, treasurer. Ten directors were nominated and of that number five will be elected on the day of the outing.

In the course of the meeting a vote of thanks was extended to the retiring president, Arthur Gaudette and a committee was appointed to organize baseball teams for the outing. Rev. Bro. Florantius, director of the college, was present and he spoke at length on the goals of the organization, urging all to do their utmost for the advancement of the association. There were also remarks by the officers.

STOLEN AUTO FOUND IN VARNUM AVE.

The Hudson coupe, owned by Adolpho Lamontagne of Colonial avenue, which was stolen from his garage in Mt. Hope street early yesterday morning, was recovered last yesterday afternoon in Varnum avenue at a point near the entrance to the Lowell General hospital. The front bumper of the car was broken, while there were other small damages which may amount to about $50.

The car remained in Varnum avenue all day despite the fact that a description of it had been given to the police. It was first seen at 8 o'clock yesterday morning by a resident of the avenue, who at 5:30 o'clock became suspicious and examined the machine. It was then that he recognized it as the Lamontagne machine and drove it to the Lamontagne home. Later the police were informed that the machine had been recovered.

came to a standstill. It was controlled perfectly by a man in charge, and he was able to use any horse will. That booth didn't lose any more business during the carnival.

I chanced to stroll down Harrison street the other evening and I beheld working in the garden just before supper the honor, the mayor. With natural ingenuity I stole into the garden and just as the mayor was industriously wielding a spade with all the grace and cock-sureness of a real, honest-to-goodness agriculturist. Not many men as busy as the mayor can boast of such a fine garden—or gardens—for it is in two distinct parts of the estate, and such a splendid array of vegetables. One's teeth just festically from the blow it had received from the heavy storm, turnips, egg plants, lettuce, now giving it its second crop, cauliflower, beans and everything that a well-ordered farm would send forth. The vines of peas, he said, had given forth quite abundantly and he was then engaged in making way for some late corn or cucumbers by stripping the old pea vines. The mayor is an enthusiastic farmer, likes his work and the results indicate not only a maximum of care, but also a wealth of labor and energy. He gets into the garden a few hours in the evening and a few in the morning and the luxuriance of the growth reflects eloquently the care of the husbandman and is sufficient compensation, he says, for the labor involved. I was about to watch the plants and vegetables when he said as I departed. There is little doubt of it for he has achieved results that only the lover of nature can achieve.

Relief From Dyspepsia

All conditions of depressed vitality tend to disturb the processes of digestion. There is not a disturbed condition of life that may not affect digestive causes.

Few causes of indigestion are so common as thin, weak blood. It affects directly and at once the great processes of nutrition. Not only is the action of the gastric and intestinal glands diminished but the muscular action of the stomach is weakened. Nothing will more promptly restore the digestive efficiency than good red blood. Without it the normal activity of the stomach is impossible.

Thin, pale people who complain of indigestion must improve the condition of their blood to find relief. The most active blood-builder in such cases is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make rich, red blood which quickly restores the digestive organs to their proper activity and the first result is hunger.

The dyspeptic who has hated the sight and smell of food now looks forward to meal time with pleasurable anticipation. "MICKY" LARKIN HERE

Famous Midwinter Swimmer Witness in Police Court

"Micky" Larkin, formerly of local fame as a swimmer in frigid water here, in holes made in the ice of the Merrimack river and other places in this section, returned to Lowell yesterday to testify in connection with a case which came before the police court.

Larkin, well remembered for his startling feats here some years ago, is now a resident of the West End, Boston. He was a boy of fourteen when he first amazed the community here by giving exhibitions in which holes were cut in the ice of the rivers and lakes hereabouts in mid-winter, and "Micky" then disappeared himself amid the freezing wavelets. He states that the doctors at that time had given him up as a victim of tuberculosis, but he determined to falsify the predictions of his early demise.

"Slaving off consumption" was the title of his act, which is fresh in the memories of local people as one of the features of more than a decade ago. In conversation with a Sun representative, he declared that he is now in robust health, and displays no symptoms of the disease which was supposed to have him in its grip. He was first recognized yesterday when he appeared in court to testify, by Inspector Matthew McCann, formerly leading Lowell all-around athlete and sport follower. "Micky" used to swim and dive among ice cakes, mostly on the Merrimack, he said yesterday. He was recognized, after attention was called to his identity, by court officers, lawyers, and others in the court room. He appeared as a witness in a case involving a slight automobile accident. "Micky" has given up his practice of bathing amid frost-bitten waters during the past twelve years, he declared yesterday, but "once in a while I tackle it at L street baths in Boston, and elsewhere," he said.

There will also be an egg race in which Mrs. Usher and Miss Breault and several others will take part. Mrs. Randall will be right on hand in case skirts are shown any longer than they should and Mrs. Barker, the courteous fitter, will be there to attend the fitting of the bathing suits, after which all of these very genial and accommodating employees will be glad to meet their customers on Friday morning.

OUTDOOR MOVIES

Big Crowd Witnesses Opening of Park Department Outdoor Movie Season on South Common
More than 6000 men, women and children witnessed the opening performance of the park department's outdoor movie season last evening on the South common. The crowd was most orderly and enjoyed the excellent music and photoplay program presented to the limit. Preceding the movies, there was a two-hour concert by the Magnavox and a large number of new song and dance hits were played. The movies started promptly at 7 o'clock and consisted of a five-reel Harry Carey feature, a two-reel comedy and the Screen Magazine.

This evening the same performance will be repeated on the North common and tomorrow evening probably on the Alken street playground. The park department asks those who intend to bring babies to the performance to leave baby carriages at home as they obstruct the view of those sitting behind them.

ELKS' ANNUAL OUTING

Plans for the annual outing of the Lowell lodge of Elks were outlined at a meeting of the members last evening. This year's outing will be held on the Martin Luther grounds in Tyngsboro September 1. William H. Mahan is chairman of the committee in charge and Joseph Gilly, secretary.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem
Am I Th Truth?

HERE'S a simple bit of counsel that will help you when you motor, in no matter what community you dwell:
When the traffic cop upbraids you, just forget that you're a voter,
And an independent citizen as well;
Though his judgment as to speeding proves him awful as a guesser
And his language seems perhaps a trifle strong,
Do not seek to argue with him, simply answer, "Nossir—yessir"—
For the Cop is always right and you are wrong!

I WAS once a charter member of that band of foolish come-ons
Who have "rights" that they insist on all the time;
So I argued with policemen and got summons after summons,
Till the judges came to think me steeped in crime.
I have had my little lesson, I have cured that form of weakness,
And I pass the information right along:
Though the officer be haughty, keep an attitude of meekness—
For the Cop is always right and you are wrong!

YOU may think that he is stupid, that he's muddly in the garret—
And on various occasions you are right—
But the diplomatic driver has the sense to grin and bear it,
For he knows it's only foolishness to fight.
It's a waste of time and temper, it's a wholly hopeless striving,
So I've put this bit of counsel into song:
Rich or poor, obscure or famous, just remember, when you're driving,
That the Cop is always right and you are wrong!

Fire Sweeps Toward Summer Cottages

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 13.—Fire fighters, who thought all danger was past and who had quit their work to rest, were busily engaged today in battling the flames that broke out again yesterday at Westfield, on the St. John river. The fire was rapidly sweeping on toward the summer cottages at Hillandale, and Grand Bay was covered with smoke, so that it was impossible to see more than 50 feet ahead.

Bluebeard or Typhoid Carrier? Trial of Woman for Murder to Decide

MRS. LYDIA SOUTHARD AND HER FIFTH AND PRESENT HUSBAND, PAUL VINCENT SOUTHARD.

By Newspaper Enterprise
TWIN FALLS, Ida., July 13.—Lydia Southard, deliberate modern Bluebeard or—

Lydia Southard, afflicted typhoid carrier? The question will be answered here in the fall term of court when Mrs. Southard goes on trial for murder. Prosecution and defense are marshaling their evidence. The trial promises to be the most bitter that the west has seen for years. All Idaho is aroused over it.

Mrs. Southard was arrested recently in Honolulu, charged with the murder of her fourth husband, Edward F. Meyer, a ranchman who lived near Twin Falls.

Three other of her former husbands had died as well as a daughter by the first husband and a brother of the first husband who lived with the couple. Good sized insurance policies were carried by all four of the husbands who died.

Married Fifth Time

At the time of her arrest, Mrs. Southard was living with her fifth husband, Paul Vincent Southard, a naval officer. They were married in Los Angeles, and Mrs. Southard went to Honolulu with him when he was transferred a short time later.

This is the unusual matrimonial history of Mrs. Southard that the state has dug up—in impersonal facts, uncolored by the charges of the prosecution.

March 17, 1912—Married Robert Dooley. Dooley's brother Ed came to live with them. On May 3, brothers took out joint insurance policy for $2000, naming Lydia beneficiary. On Aug. 9, 1915, Ed died and Lydia received face of policy. Next day Robert and Lydia applied for joint $2500 policy, to be

BIG GUSHERS IN ALASKA

Returning Fortune Seekers

Report Abundance of Oil in Northern Field

JUNEAU, Alaska, July 13.—First of the fortune-seekers to make the round trip this year to new oil fields at Fort Norman, in the MacKenzie valley of northern Canada, nine men passed through Juneau recently enroute to Edmonton, Alberta, where they will record their locations on oil lands.

"I believe the district will be a world beater," John McDonnell, one of the "sour-dough" leaders of the party said. "One gusher at Norman produced 1500 barrels a day, according to reports which I believe are below the correct figures."

Every member of the party said the oil was of high grade and asserted it was used in the Fort Norman country for lighting and heating and even was used, without being changed from its crude state, in gas engines.

The nine men "mashed" into the old fields over a 750-mile trail, part of which was snow-covered, across the continental divide from White Horse, Yukon territory. They made the trip to Norman in twenty-one days, which is considered very fast time and used thirty-five dogs to pull their sleds.

Originally most of the men came from Vancouver, B. C., which they left on March 5, of this year, coming north to Skagway, Alaska, and crossing the White Pass trail to White Horse by railroad. Leaving White Horse March 13, they took the trail to Carmacks, on the Yukon river, and then struck out across the mountains for the big Canadian basin. At Fort Norman they found themselves among the first stampedeers of the year to get "inside."

Hundreds of men from Canada and the United States are planning to go to the new fields this year over the Canadian route, through Edmonton, Fort McMurray and Peace River. Most of this route is by steamboat down the Peace and Mackenzie rivers. Although fast time can be made, summer over this interior route, the men who passed through here declared the trail from White Horse was the best winter way to Norman. There is plenty of game along the route for food and the going is easy, they said.

ASKS FOR DESTRUCTION OF MONUMENT

LINCOLN, Neb., July 13.—Pelham A. Barrows, national commander of the Sons of Veterans, yesterday forwarded a letter to President Harding asking that he order the destruction of a small monument, reported to be in Troy, Ala., which contains an inscription honoring Wilkes Booth for the murder of Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Barrows stated that this was in accordance with resolution passed by a number of veterans' posts.

Has Been Removed
TROY, Ala., July 13.—A monument erected here in the 60's to the memory of John Wilkes Booth, was removed a few days ago by order of the town council. It was purchased by Pink Carter, a politician, who made an effort to erect it on Court House square, but was denied permission and then placed it on his own premises whence it was removed recently.

FORGE VILLAGE HOSPITAL
The new hospital at Forge Village conducted by the Abbott Worthington has recently been equipped with a dental department, which will be in charge of Dr. Raymond of Boston. paid to survivor. On Oct. 1, a month and a half later, Robert died. Certificate showed scarlet fever as cause. On Nov. 15 Lydia's daughter died. Scarlet fever was given as cause.

June 1917—Married William G. McHaffie, place unknown. On June 12 McHaffie applied for $5000 insurance policy, payable to Lydia. Sixteen months later he died. Lydia reported flu and black diphtheria as cause. McHaffie's policy lapsed just before his death.

March 19, 1919—Married Harlan C. Lewis. On June 14 Lewis applied for $5000 insurance policy. Twenty-six days later he died. The doctor's certificate said cause was acute gastroenteritis. Lydia collected the policy.

August 10, 1920—Married Edward F. Meyer. Next day Meyer took out a policy for $10,000 and made a will bequeathing $12,000 worth of property to Lydia. Twenty-eight days later he died after an illness of a few days. Typhoid fever was given as the cause in doctor's certificate. Two attempts were made to collect the $10,000 policy but the money was held up.

November 26, 1920—Married Paul Vincent Southard, her present husband, at Los Angeles. Telegraphic advices from Honolulu, where Mrs. Southard was arrested, say Southard stated he had applied for a $10,000 insurance policy, but that his application for so large a policy was rejected.

State's Statement
This is the unbiased record. This is what Prosecutor Frank L. Stephen has to add to it:

"We do not credit Mrs. Southard's claim that she thinks she is a typhoid carrier, and that it was this that may have caused her husband's death. Regardless of what doctors' certificates showed, we have found proof of arsenic poisoning. What is more, all the men revealed the same symptoms, and they were not the symptoms of typhoid."

"We will claim that arsenic was obtained by an extracting process from fly paper. And the evidence will show that quantities of fly paper were found hidden near where two or the men died."

Bodies Examined
After the state investigation was begun, the bodies were exhumed and scientific analyses made.

Lydia approaches the climaxing chapter in her strange matrimonial serial cheerfully. Whatever her inner thoughts may be, she views the coming ordeal with outward calm. Physically she shows the strain, of course, but she greets callers and jailers with a smile.

Against the amazing chain of circumstantial evidence that the state has submitted only her claim of having drawn up, Mrs. Southard thus far has doctors' certificates as proof of the cause of her husband's deaths. She has made only one public statement. That was given out through her attorneys and declared her innocence.

Worcester Veteran of First Division Feels as Fine as He Did Before the War

"My health is just as good now as it was before I joined the army, but I couldn't say that before I took Tanlac," said Fred J. Lambert, 24 Francis street, Worcester, Mass. Mr. Lambert served during the late war with the 28th Infantry, First Division, and was gassed four times.

"After I came home from France I found myself in a run down condition and suffering from indigestion. I worried along in this fix for a long time. My appetite was entirely gone and I could hardly digest anything. I was so nervous I fairly trembled all over at times and nights I couldn't sleep and often got up out of my bed and walked the floor. I had terrible dizzy spells and mornings I got up with a awful headache, and feeling so weak I could hardly get off to my work. I went to my work every morning with almost no breakfast at all and even then I had that peculiar burning feeling right in the pit of my stomach for hours."

"One night I read a testimonial from someone who recommended Tanlac so highly I decided to give it a trial. I ran on my fifth bottle now and my second box of the tablets, and my improvement in my condition is simply wonderful. Why, I feel just like a new man, haven't a trace of any of my troubles, and I feel as well as I ever did in my life. Tanlac certainly does the work."

Tanlac is sold in Lowell by Green's drug store under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; by Wright Drug Co., Billerica, Mass.; A. D. Falls, Concord, Mass.; Snow's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggist in every town.—Adv.

RAINBOW DIVISION IS TO HOLD CONVENTION

CLEVELAND, O., July 13.—The Rainbow Division, one of the most famous American divisions that participated in the world war, will open its second annual convention here tomorrow. Several thousand are expected to attend the three-day event. The Cleveland chapter will entertain 25 wounded Rainbow men still in hospitals.

The division was recruited from 26 states. The infantry regiments came from New York, Ohio, Alabama and Iowa, the artillery from Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky.

After training at Camp Mills, Long Island, the division sailed for France in October of 1917, the fourth division to arrive.

After three months of intensive training in France the men went into the trenches near Baccarat. From then on it was continuous heavy fighting and hardships. At Champagne where the division was a stone wall against the great German offensive, from there to Chateau-Thierry salient, and then followed St. Mihiel, where in two days over 2000 prisoners were taken. The division was engaged in two important phases of the great Argonne-Meuse offensive and finally ended up at Sedan on Nov. 7.

From December, 1918, to April, 1919, its members were in the Army of Occupation and finally arrived home in May, 1919.

Col. M. A. Tinley of Council Bluffs, Ia., is president of the division organization.

and, just at adjournment, David Stone-

man. Mr. Levenson's firm got $15,000, but of this $2500 was paid to Charles H. Innes and $4000 to Councillor Wright and $3000 to David Stoneham. These lawyers further divided among other lawyers.

Stress Number of Conferences
All of the lawyers who have testified so far have stressed the number of conferences that were necessary, and Mr. Wright averred yesterday that the figure at one time was as high as $250,000 as the sum necessary for the film men to pay to go free of danger, but finally Mr. Conkley engineered the settlement totalling $400,000.

Mr. Levenson explained the connection of former Attorney-General Henry C. Attwill with the case, saying that the latter and Councillor Wright were at the Copley-Plaza dinner, preceding the Mshavum Manor party, "and I thought that I might get a good suggestion from him." So, following the dinner, Mr. Wright was summoned by Mayor Curley's summoning the "movie" men to the Touraine, and their subsequent interviews with Conkley and Tufts. Levenson escorted some of them to the state house to see Mr. Attwill, who recommended Mr. Wright. Mr. Wright was engaged and he recommended Innes.

Nothing Improper, Say Lawyers

In the cross-examination of all the lawyers who so far have gone on the stand, Fletcher Ranney, for the defence, has stressed questions leading to the conclusion that there really was nothing improper at the Manor party of March 6 and that all the attorneys, in their visits to Dist.-Atty. Tufts, must have claimed that their clients, the movie men, were absolutely guiltless of any act warranting criminal prosecution, so that Tufts may well have been impressed by their arguments against indictment.

The lawyer witnesses have fought shy of questioning by Mr. Hurlburt as to political influence, and Mr. Levenson would only say that it was "partly" because of Mr. Innes' broad acquaintance and prominence in political affairs that he was engaged. As for the connection of Mr. Tufts, these same lawyer witnesses, called by the commonwealth, have practically agreed that all that Tufts promised was that if it could be shown that the movie men were innocent he would not indict.

Mr. Wright Remembers
In redirect examination, Mr. Wright was induced to say, by Mr. Hurlburt, over the objections of the defence that he remembered, with the aid of a typewritten copy of an interview he had had with Atty.-Gen. Allen and Mr. Hurlburt, having said that he thought Mr. Innes a close political friend of Mr. Tufts.

In re-cross, Mr. Wright admitted that he would not say that he recommended the employment of Mr. Innes because he was a close friend of Mr. Tufts.

Mr. Hurlburt, in the earlier examination, had brought out from Mr. Wright that he called on Tufts at the latter's Waltham home, and urged that as there was a civil suit pending against Mr. Zukor, according to the letter from Aylward, the secret indictment said to have been found against the movie men might well be held in abeyance.

Until the outcome of the civil suit; but "Mr. Tufts spoke in uncompromising terms of them, and their performance at Woburn, and said that men of this character could not come from New York to corrupt the morals of the community. He spoke of a special grand jury to consider the matter."

Asked About Getting $15
The feature of the testimony of Mrs. Teresa M. Robicheau was her declaration that she was taken to the office of Dist.-Atty. Tufts by Silas Smith of the state police, then assigned to the Middlesex district, but since transferred, and that she asked Tufts about getting $15 owed to her by "Brownie" Kennedy for playing the piano. She said he replied that she need not worry, that he would get the money for her, and she wouldn't have to go to court. But she never has got the money, she added.

She saw lists of men and girls who had been at Mshavum Manor, in the possession of the district attorney.

Her testimony as to the alleged orgy at the Manor was quite disappointing to the large crowd which thronged not only the courtroom but the corridors. She even stood on the street curb to catch a glimpse of her, for she denied that she saw anything improper, and also denied that she testified to anything of that sort in the lower court at Woburn, and denied giving any of the interviews printed in various papers as coming from her.

Was Quite Transformed

Mrs. Robicheau was quite transformed from the preceding day, when she had been on the stand only a few moments, then plainly dressed. Yesterday she was radiant in a brand new blue silk, with chic hat to match, with expensive ostrich feather, and string of small pearls and wrist watch.

She contradicted previous testimony by averring that Hiram Abrams, president of the Paramount Pictures company, and Asher and Golden, two other film men, stayed at the Manor all night, and she saw one of them awakened at about 9 a. m. to sign a check. Mr. Asher has testified that he paid the bill, which amounted to $1050, but it has been a race between all the movie men to place themselves moving back to Boston from the Manor at the hour nearest to 2 a. m.

Supposed to Be Sisters

She testified that she had met Asher and Golden at the Manor a week prior to the night of March 6. Bessie McDonald and the witness were supposed to be sisters, but there was no relationship.

Bessie is now married. She was a waitress at the Manor. Mrs. Robicheau said that after her visit to Tufts' office she went with State Detective Smith to the office of Capt. Gordon, and they asked her the names of the men and girls at the Manor March 6. They had the names already, the witness averred.

On another day Smith came for her in an automobile, took her to the courthouse again, and she signed a paper which was not read to her and which she did not read. Mr. Hurlburt showed her the "release," which is an exhibit in the case, and she identified her signature. Bessie McDonald went with her that day, Smith calling on her.

Never Consulted Lawyer

She declared she never made any claim against any movie man and never consulted a lawyer about it. She knew Eva Lord at the Manor, but does not know whether she is married. On cross-examination, the witness stated that she and Bessie were the only witnesses against "Brownie" Kennedy in the Woburn court, but the witness insisted that all she testified about was the $15 owed to her. She could not remember testifying at all about the party, nor whether Bessie so testified.

"But you knew Brownie was convicted?" asked Mr. Ranney.

"Yes." "Didn't you say that as the party progressed some of the men grew rough and hugged and kissed the girls?"

"No." Mrs. Robicheau averred that both she and Bessie were treated respectfully. So far as the witness knows, none of the men stayed with the girls, except that one stayed to see Brownie, and one was awakened at 8 or 9 o'clock to sign a paper. Bessie told the police where the liquor was hidden.

Didn't Give Names

She could not remember whether Bessie gave names of the men and girls to the police, but was sure she (the witness) did not. She had no recollection of saying the girls were telephoned for, nor of saying it was a bad place. She didn't see any hugging or kissing.

Mrs. Robicheau shed tears when asked as to whether she was away "on a 10-day vacation," and subsequently admitted she was arrested Oct. 23, 1917, on Massachusetts avenue.

Officer Thomas A. Thompson of the state police testified that at the orders of Deputy Chief Neal he accompanied Councillor Wright May 22, 1917, to the office of James F. Aylward. He corroborated the councillor as to Aylward's ordering both visitors out on learning that the witness was a policeman. Aylward refused to give Wright the desired information as to the name of the man who was going to sue Zukor for alienation of his wife's affections, and declared, according to the witness, that he would not give it if Wright "brought the whole state police force."

On cross-examination, the witness stated that she and Bessie were the only witnesses against "Brownie" Kennedy in the Woburn court, but the witness insisted that all she testified about was the $15 owed to her. She could not remember testifying at all about the party, nor whether Bessie so testified.

Never Consulted Lawyer

She declared she never made any claim against any movie man and never consulted a lawyer about it. She knew Eva Lord at the Manor, but does

ROUGH IN AFGHANISTAN

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—If you want to keep 'em good you gotta mar-

That's the way they keep the young maiden from temptation in Afghanis-

Sultana, member of the royal family of that country, who stopped here on her trip to England long enough to tell the mayor how to run a city.

"The women in our country are very, very good—they marry young," was one of her comments. "The pretty maidens of Afghanistan do not flirt—their faces are covered with veils."

Prohibition violators in America

Uncle Sam used Afghanistani methods.

Bootleggers and thieves are treated roughly here and is cut off and the arm

AT 89 SHE FLIES OVER NEW YORK

MRS. C. J. GOFF

BY ALICE ROHE

NEW YORK, July 13.—Mrs. C. J. Goff, at 89, does all the work in her eight-room apartment here.

But only the early birds find her, for before most folks are up, she has her work done and is off on a shopping expedition.

I found her, after two unsuccessful attempts, at 7.30 a. m. She had been up for two hours.

Mrs. Goff is the mother of Fred H. Goff, Cleveland banker, who has just been named by President Harding to untangle the railroad snarl.

She lives alone—by choice.

"All my boys want me to spend the summers at their country places," she says, "but I can't stand the noise and confusion." Yet—

Mrs. Goff often packs up her trunks and sets off alone on a world tour. Japan, Africa, Europe—she knows them all. And a custom house full of pushing, shouting porters and examiners doesn't bother her at all.

Last fall she took an airplane trip over New York with a pilot from Asbury Park. She got all the thrills of 2000 feet, dips and dives. And she said, when she landed:

"It didn't last long enough. I'm coming back before a stealer coming back for more."

Here's the philosophy that, at 89, helps to make her look 65 and act still 10 years younger:

"She doesn't talk about her troubles—if she has any. She believes meaningless conversation, like meaningless acquaintances, dissipate one's vitality."

THE WORLD'S HOTTEST JOB

ALICE CALHOUN AND SKETCH OF REFLECTORS BEING USED IN MAKING OUTDOOR MOVIES

BY MARIAN HALE

SOMEWHERE ON LONG ISLAND, N. Y., July 13.—The hottest job in the world? It's making movies "on location."

I have spent a day with Alice Calhoun, the Vitaphone star who is under contract to produce eight feature films this year.

We have motored to "location"—a wooded hollow off one of the main highways.

The temperature is around 100. Not a breath of air is stirring. At the bottom of the hollow is the set for a smuggler's cabin.

Director Edward Jose is putting Joe Striker, the leading man, and Dick Lee, the smuggler, through rehearsal of a fight.

Five times they fight a battle down the stairs from the loft of the cabin. "Camera!"

The sixth battle was to be the real one as well as the reel one.

Crash. The fighting men slipped and fell 12 steps together. At the bottom they continued to pummel and claw each other till the director called time.

Jose wasn't satisfied. The fall was too sudden. He wanted a fight step by step down the stairs.

The gladiators—soaked with perspiration, scratched and limping—had to do it over.

As they reached the bottom Miss Calhoun's part called for her to rush in, press a pipe against the back of the smuggler's head and cry, "Hands up, or I'll shoot!"

More rehearsal. "Camera!"

All the pictures are made under the glare of a battery of reflectors which throw the sun's rays full in the faces of the actors.

A thermometer hung before the rays of these reflectors showed a temperature of 110 degrees.

A star earns her $1000 a week on location in the summer time.

BODY OF CHELMSFORD HERO ON WAY HOME

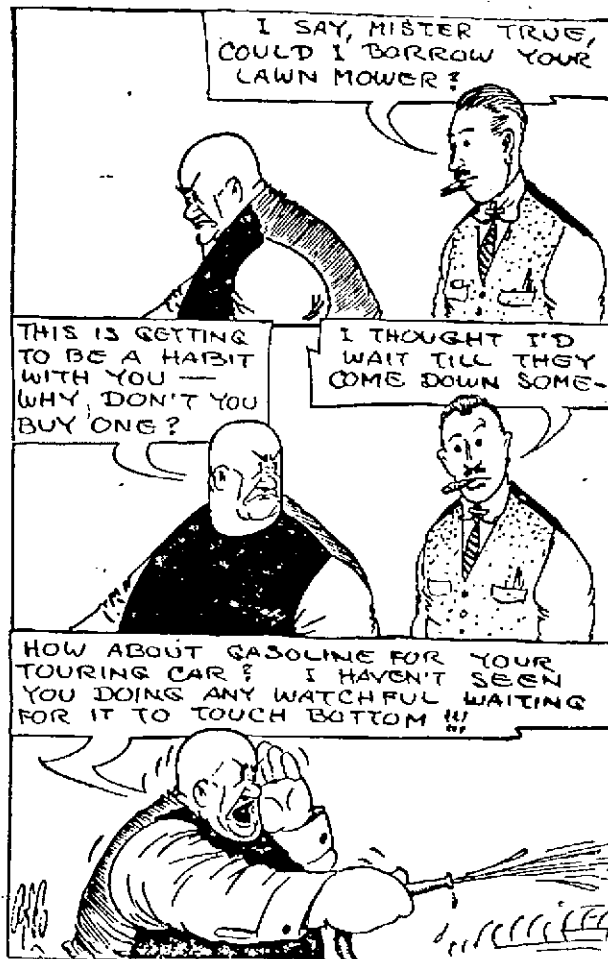

Word has been received to the effect that the body of Priv. Alberton W. Vinal, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Vinal of North Chelmsford, who was killed in action in France June 16, 1918, has arrived in New York and will be shipped home immediately. Out of respect for deceased, the Chelmsford post of the American legion, which was to conduct a big carnival at the Centre village tomorrow evening, has postponed the event to a later date.

A half-billion candlepower searchlight, whose rays can be seen 70 miles away, is being installed on Mt. Tamalpais, near San Francisco.

NURSE IN ATTENDANCE

May Confer With Prime Minister Alone

ACCEPTANCE BY THREE NATIONS

Britain, France and Italy to Participate in Parley on Disarmament

Japan Not on Record But Believed She Will Favor Proposal

LONDON, July 13.—Three of the principal allied nations, Great Britain, France and Italy, have officially signified their acceptance of President Harding's invitation to hold a conference on limitation of armaments, while China has indicated her readiness to participate in a conference relative to far eastern questions. Japan is the only one of the allies which has not placed herself on record as being ready to take part in the Washington conference, but it is expected in official circles here that her acceptance will be communicated to the United States government soon.

In government circles in this city it appears to be the consensus of opinion that the meeting at Washington will be attended by some of the most prominent statesmen of the world. The announcement of Premier Briand of France that he would consider going to Washington followed indications that Prime Minister George might also go, provided conditions in Great Britain are such as to permit his extended absence from the country. It is probable, however, that some of the leading figures in British official life will be present. Among those mentioned as delegates are A. J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury; Lord Lee of Farnham, first lord of the admiralty; Sir Laming Worthington Evans, secretary of state for war; Admiral Lord Beatty, and Viscount Grey.

Advices from Paris state that the commission for reducing of armaments appointed by the League of Nations will probably hold only a brief session in that city on Saturday.

LIST OF SIGNATURES IS CAREFULLY COMPILED

"One of the most accurate and carefully compiled list of signatures I have ever seen," was the way Chairman Hugh C. McOsker of the board of election commissioners today characterized the initiative petition, asking that the law which will allow labor unions to be sued to be set aside until the people have a chance to vote on the matter, which was submitted last week to the commission to have the signatures checked. The petition was signed by 740 local labor men and the signatures were collected under the direction of Timothy F. O'Rourke, president of the Lowell Trades and Labor council. Out of that entire number, signatures only six names, or less than one per cent, were found to be incorrect. This is considered a remarkable record because on most petitions which come to the election commission anywhere from 20 to 25 per cent of the signatures are thrown out. The unusual accuracy in the labor petition was the result of Mr. O'Rourke's personal efforts in checking the names himself.

SUBURBAN DAY

Many Visitors Take Advantage of Special Bargains

Today was Suburban day in Lowell and despite the warm weather, hundreds of residents of the towns surrounding Lowell came in to take advantage of the many bargains offered by local merchants. Police officers stationed in the downtown district said that there were many more people on the streets than on the ordinary Wednesday and every store did a brisk business especially during the forenoon hours.

The ranks of the suburbanites were swelled by hundreds of Lowell people who took the opportunity to buy vacation articles and summer necessities at prices far below normal as advertised in last evening's editions of The Sun.

WIFE IS ACQUITTED ON THIEVING CHARGE

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., July 13.—Mrs. Theresa Marabell of Bellport was acquitted in county court today of stealing $10 from her husband's trousers. She took the money while her husband was asleep and went to New York. A justice of the peace sentenced her to four months in jail, but when the news spread the married women of the community hired a lawyer to appeal the case. Judge Furman ruled that the old common law, that a married woman cannot steal from her husband applied in the case.

Rioting Continues in Belfast As Final Arrangements Are Being Made For Peace Parley in London

General Smuts May Be Temporary Chairman of Coming Conference—Believed Final Decision On Questions May Be Made in Dublin

LONDON, July 13.—By the Associated Press.—The first meeting between Premier Lloyd George and Eamonn de Valera, will be held at 4.30 p. m., Thursday at No. 10 Downing street, the prime minister's official residence, it was announced at Sinn Fein headquarters this afternoon. It is inferred that the conference is to be between these two men alone.

Rioting occurred in Vere street in Belfast this afternoon, says a Central News despatch from Belfast. Two constables were injured and three civilians were taken to a hospital suffering from gunshot wounds. Final preparations for the meeting of Eamonn de Valera, Irish republican leader, and Prime Minister Lloyd George, to be held here tomorrow, were being made by the government and the Irish delegation today.

British Officials Ready

British officials who have been closely associated with Irish affairs during the recent past were said today to be prepared to join in discussions with the Sinn Fein delegation headed by Mr. De Valera, and it was thought possible that General J. C. Smuts, premier of the union of South Africa, would play a very definite role in the negotiations that would take place. General Smuts has been considered the man chiefly responsible for the rapid development of peace moves in Ireland, and late last week, it was said he might act as temporary chairman of the coming conference. Mr. De Valera and his colleagues spent last night at a hotel with friends in this city. During the evening, there was a meeting of Sinn Fein sympathizers, at which it is assumed the situation was quite thoroughly canvassed.

Reports from Ireland indicate the truce arranged which became effective at noon last Monday, was being observed. The observance of "Orangemen's day" in Belfast, yesterday, was not attended by any violence.

Decided in Dublin

Irishmen closely in touch with the Sinn Fein declare the question whether there is to be peace or continuation of the war in Ireland will be decided in Dublin. Mr. De Valera and his colleagues will listen attentively to any suggestion made by the British premier or other British statesmen in London and will discuss freely with them the way to a settlement, but the Irish parliament, these Irishmen say, will decide whether any of the proposed solutions are acceptable to the Irish people.

Irish Police Leave

DUBLIN, July 13. (By the Associated Press).—Large bodies of police auxiliaries, as a consequence of the truce in Ireland, have been granted indefinite leave of absence. The first batch of the auxiliaries has already left for England.

BUILDING PERMIT

Airplanes in their flight to the oil fields of Port Norman so frightened the Indians that it was with difficulty they could be prevented from shooting at the "devil birds." At one settlement the entire populace took to the woods.

Potato flour is again being shipped from Holland to the United States in large quantities.

Potatoes closely in touch with the Sinn Fein declare the question whether there is to be peace or continuation of the war in Ireland will be decided in Dublin. Mr. De Valera and his colleagues will listen attentively to any suggestion made by the British premier or other British statesmen in London and will discuss freely with them the way to a settlement, but the Irish parliament, these Irishmen say, will decide whether any of the proposed solutions are acceptable to the Irish people.

BECOMES HYSTERICAL AS TRIAL PROCEEDS

CLEVELAND, July 13.—Mrs. Eva Kaber went into a hysterical faint soon after court opened here this morning while her brother, Charles Brickel, was testifying in her behalf in the trial in which she is charged with murdering her husband, Daniel F. Kaber. She screamed hysterically and fell to the floor. She was carried out by bailiffs. Excitement among the women spectators was intense. The crowds did not calm down until Judge Maurice Bernon had admonished all to keep their seats.

Court bailiffs immediately seized Mrs. Kaber when she began to scream but she wriggled out of their grasp and soon was prostrate on the floor.

WILL REPAIR PLAIN STREET BRIDGE

The maintenance and way department of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad will begin repairs on the Plain street bridge, which was ordered closed more than a week ago by City Engineer Stephen Kearney because of its dangerous condition. City Solicitor William D. Regan has received assurances that the superintendent of maintenance of the Old Colony division of the road will be instructed to have the necessary repairs made at once. If there is material at hand, work will begin immediately; if it is not on hand, it will be secured within a week and then work will start.

City Engineer Kearney had received several complaints about the bridge being closed but the assurances received at city hall today would indicate that there will be no further delay. The city is ready to repave the bridge as soon as the railroad repairs the understructure.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR SPECIAL ELECTION

Definite arrangements for the special election to be held here Tuesday, Aug. 3, on the petition of the chamber of commerce that street construction here be done by contract will be made by the election commission at a meeting to be held this evening. The commission has received its instructions from the municipal council to prepare for the coming election and it will set to work at once after its plan of campaign is arranged tonight.

SHOOTING GOES ON IN BELFAST STREETS

Lawyer Says He Paid Claims In Cash to Keep Checks From "Women of Underworld"

WOMEN HAD NO JUST CLAIMS

Witness Admits He Made No Attempt to Investigate Cases

Says it Was His Job to See That No Suits Were Started

Claims All Papers in Case Have Disappeared From Office

BOSTON, July 13.—Daniel H. Coakley, named by Attorney General J. Weston Allen as a principal with District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex county in an alleged conspiracy to extort $100,000 from motion picture men who participated in a midnight party at Mishawum Manor in Woburn in 1917, received $21,032 as his fee in the case, he testified today. He said his services consisted of obtaining releases from women who were at the roadhouse, and others. David Stoneman, counsel for Hiram Abrams, alleged by the attorney general to have been the go-between, had testified previously today that he paid Coakley $85,000 from funds given him by Abrams.

Said He Paid $13,000

Coakley said he gave $13,000 to Daniel H. Sughrue of his office and spent $9,000 in expenses and in connection with the releases. He acknowledged receipt from Stoneman, of two checks aggregating $85,000.

He paid $2500 at one time and $14,250 at another time, he said, to H. C. Sawyer, who represented a client with an alleged claim against Jesse Lasky. Sawyer's client, he said, was a man named Crane. He also paid $7000 to James F. Aylward and a man named Clark, counsel for two other complainants. The various claims were settled in cash, he said, because he "did not wish to run the chance of a check getting into the hands of a woman of the underworld, where it might be photographed."

The witness said the papers and vouchers in the case had disappeared.

MAINE MAN ARRESTED

Local Police Arrest Louis Dearborn — Woman and Child Detained

The arrest of Louis A. Dearborn, a painter of Bangor, Me., and the detention of a Mrs. Tibbets, of Newport, Me., and her seven-year-old child, by Officer Frank H. Murphy, assisted by Officer Edward F. Flanagan, as the couple reached Bridge street early this afternoon in a Dodge touring car, said to be the property of the woman's husband, created a stir here, and formed the climax of what is said to be a strange story of lawless romance. The sheriff of Newport, Me., telephoned to headquarters in this city early in the day, stating that a Dodge car, Maine registration number 42128, was missing. The wife of the alleged owner was supposed to be in the car with her little girl, the child of a former marriage, and as it was stated that for-

FIRE DESTROYS LUMBER MILL IN MAINE

ELLSWORTH FALLS, Me., July 13.—Fire today totally destroyed the long lumber mill owned by Whitcomb, Haynes & Co., on the river, spreading considerable damage in the yard of the company. The loss was about $25,000 which is but partially covered by insurance. Help was sent by the Ellsworth fire department. The mill had been closed for two weeks to permit repairs upon the machinery and it is believed that the fire was occasioned by spontaneous combustion in a sawdust pile. The mill employed about 40 men.

N. H. TROOPS ARE READY

State Guard in Armories Ready for Duty in Paper Mill Strike

CONCORD, N. H., July 13.—New Hampshire state guard troops were still today under arms in their armories, but no call for strike duty had yet come either from Franklin or Berlin, where industrial disputes between the International Paper Co. and the workers had created menacing situations. Gov. Albert O. Brown this morning received Matthew A. Ryan as a "citizen" of Berlin and John L. Barry of Manchester, president of the State Federation of Labor, representing the striking workmen of Berlin and Franklin. The subjects discussed with the governor by these visitors were not disclosed, but it was thought they presented arguments for the strikers and in support of orders that have been sought for the expulsion of imported strike-breakers from the state.

ATTEMPT MADE TO ASSASSINATE

Report From Warsaw of Attack on Life of Polish President

Police Run to Earth a Plot to Overthrow the Government

Authorities Said to be Maintaining Utmost Reserve Regarding Affair

COPENHAGEN, July 13.—A dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende, from Warsaw today reports an attempt to assassinate President Pilsudski of Poland. The dispatch adds that the police have run down a plot to overthrow the Polish government. The authorities, says the message, are maintaining the utmost reserve with regard to the affair, but it appears that a man had forced himself into President Pilsudski's room and fired several shots. A number of arrests have been made. There is some similarity between the circumstances narrated in the foregoing dispatch and those described in a Warsaw message of June 28, which told of an attempt by an apparently unbalanced man, to gain admission to the presidential palace in the Polish capital. Several shots were fired by the man, it was stated, after he had been refused admittance to the palace and while the police were overpowering him one member of the force was wounded.

ROMANCE OF THE WORLD WAR

Climax to Thrilling Drama of Big Conflict May be Staged Here

Austrian Ace Seeks Man Who Placed Him at Death's Door

Lieut. Hrushka Learns in New York That Captain Becker Came Here

(Special to The Sun)
By Capt. Claude R. Collins, New York City Air Police Reserve
NEW YORK, July 13.—Is Capt. Becker, initials unknown, former flight leader of British Royal Air Forces in Lowell, Mass? If so, Lowell will be the stage for an odd climax to one of the most thrilling serial dramas of the world war. The finale of this unusual romance reared upon the arrival in New York of Lieut. Rudolph J. Hrushka, an ace in the Austrian army air forces. Lieut. Hrushka, accompanied by his pretty wife, daughter of the baroness Olga Vonauerskron, Viennese operatic star, has come to America in search of the man who placed him on the borderland of death and brought to his side his tilted blade-to-br, who nursed him back to life. Hrushka has learned, after a two-year hunt, that Capt. Becker of the R.A.F. piloted the plane which sent him crashing to earth and his pilot to his doom on the fatal morning of Aug. 23, 1918. For nine months the Austrian ace lay in casts in a hospital at Styrum. The first six months he was constantly on the verge

BARN AND GARAGE BURNED TO GROUND

The barn and garage of Henry H. Atwood, postmaster and general merchant at Pelham, N. H., were burned to the ground at noon today. Three automobiles that were in the garage were saved, but two or three tons of hay as well as 15 Belgian hares, which were in the attic of the barn were burned. The damage will exceed $1500, partly covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is not known. When the blaze was discovered, it was working its way through the roof of the barn. A hose was connected to the big water tank of the Northeastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. car barn on the opposite side of the road and the buildings nearby, which were being threatened, were wet down by car barn employees, who did very efficient work in preventing the flames from spreading.

CLOSING ARGUMENTS IN MURDER TRIAL

DEDHAM, July 13.—The jurors in the trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, charged with having shot down a paymaster and his guard during a robbery at South Braintree a year ago were asked in closing arguments by defense counsel today to dismiss from their minds all reference to the defendants as foreigners and radicals.

Fred H. Moore of Los Angeles, counsel for Sacco, said the question at issue was one of identification only. He asked the jury not to condemn the defendants as anarchists or as representing any class and further requested that there be drawn a line between the radical thinker and that type of anarchist who would drag into the mire his friends and compatriots.

Consciousness of Guilt

Mr. Moore then turned to the subject of consciousness of guilt, which he said the state would declare Sacco and Vanzetti showed when they lied under questioning after their arrest. The defense admitted that the defendants lied at the time of arrest, but held that it was because they were conscious of guilt of something other than the crime alleged. He pointed to admissions by Sacco and Vanzetti that they had gone to Mexico in 1917 to avoid the military draft and said they were afraid of being caught on that score when they were arrested. They were conscious of guilt that night also because they were on an expedition to collect radical literature from their friends at a time when they felt that they would be deported or arrested if caught, he said.

Laughter Out of Court

"If you were told 10 years ago," Mr. Moore said, "that in 1920 an American lawyer would advise his clients to get rid of books and papers of that character the man who told you that would have been laughed out of court."

Mr. Moore closed by asking the jury not to consider in finding their verdict any intermediate degrees of guilt, but to find the defendants innocent or guilty of murder in the first degree. The case called for no compromise, he said. Moore attacked the credibility of the state witnesses who identified Sacco. In the course of this attack, he declared he wanted to state that the attitude of the district attorney's office during the case had been one of unfailing courtesy and fairness, but that the ancestry of some of the state evidence was subject to considerable question.

Condemns Itself

The testimony of Mrs. Lola R. Andrews, who identified Sacco as a man who was working on an automobile near the scene of and shortly before the murder, condemned itself, counsel asserted. So also he said did the testimony of Louis Peller, who said he saw the man who was "the dead image

LABOR DAY OBSERVANCE

Trades and Labor Council Will Settle Celebration Question This Evening

The question of whether Lowell is to have an elaborate celebration on Labor day this year with a parade and other attractive features, or whether the day will pass as it has during several preceding years with a quiet observance, will be decided this evening at a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council.

The present unemployment situation existing here may have some effect on the decision of the delegates from the various local unions who will meet tonight to decide the question of a celebration. With from 6000 to 8000 people out of work here, as estimated by Timothy F. O'Rourke, president of the Trades and Labor Council, it is doubtful if the union men will care to go in for any extensive celebration. On the other hand, if a parade is held here Labor day it will serve to keep many Lowell people here who otherwise might spend the holiday out of town. In that way Lowell money would go to Lowell dealers instead of to the benches and parks.

No Arrests Made—Police Think Occupants Were Told of Proposed Raid

Names of men well known in Lowell were secured by the officers of the local liquor and vice squads, in a raid shortly before midnight last night on a house on the Old Groton road in Tyngsboro. Prominent residents of Nashua, N. H., and other places, are said to have become known also to the raiders, as being patrons of the establishment, suspected as a resort where merriment was held away, with wine, woman and song to add gaiety to the festivities. Rare Old Liquors Stolen Last Week

From Wilder Street House Recovered by Police

Rare old liquors, some of them said to be so aged as to be well-nigh priceless, were recovered by the local police authorities this morning as the result of investigations made by Lieutenant David Petrie relative to a theft last week from the "cellar" of William E. Hall, a resident of Wilder street, corner of Princeton, Bertram B. Clark, held in bonds of $1000 for a hearing Friday on improper conduct charges, has admitted participating in the taking of the costly beverages, and this morning, accompanied by police officials, went to the Alken street district and located the place where he said that part of the loot was sold. Eight bottles of assorted old-time brandy, including champagne, gin, whiskey, brandy and vermouth, were brought in a box to headquarters, where it was placed under lock and key.

Later in the day an additional complaint was sworn out against Clark in the office of the clerk of the police court, charging him with breaking and entering, with larceny of liquors.

The story given out by the police is to the effect that Clark was employed at the Hall residence some days ago, in painting the interior of the dwelling. It is alleged that while at work he "spotted" the liquors, which the owner of the house has had since long prior to prohibition. Later, the supply of liquid refreshment was cleaned out, about twenty bottles of varied gold-labeled and tin-foil-stoppered brands being taken in all. Lieutenant David Petrie was placed in charge of the case, and not only secured evidence of Clark's complicity in the break, but also learned from a local lodging-house keeper information which led to the issuance of a complaint for improper conduct. While the prisoner was held

Turks Continue to Deport Greeks

SAMSUN, Asia Minor, July 12. (By the Associated Press.)—Deportation of Greeks into the interior by the Turkish nationalists continues. The deportees included 100 employees of American tobacco firms. The deportations have been carried out, the nationalists say, to block Greek agitation for a republic in the Pontus area, in the northeast corner of Asia Minor. One village has been burned by the nationalists and 52 bodies of men, women and children are floating in the mouth of the Kizilirmak river. They were killed, according to the nationalists, in retaliation for Greek atrocities in the Ismid area.

"The Conquest of Canaan"

Satirizes the Old Home Town

TOM MEIGHAN, HERO OF "THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN."

DORIS KENYON, HEROINE OF "THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN."

THE BIG PUNCH IN "THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN"

NEW YORK, July 13.—Booth Tarkington wrote "The Conquest of Canaan" 16 years ago. It is satire on small town life that sets a mark unequalled by "Main Street," "Moon Calf" or any of the other current stories dealing with provincial life and ideas.

But the photoplay version of "The Conquest of Canaan" loses much of the subtlety of the book, even though Tarkington worked in the closest cooperation with the scenario writer and director.

The action is set in Canaan, Ind., where "respectability" is the paramount issue of life. "Respectability" consists of a weekly spiritual scrubbing and seven days of snobbishness, intolerance and hypocrisy.

Joe Louder is ostracized by respectable society because he associated with parties who have no bank accounts or Sunday clothes.

Ariel Tabor is of the same ilk. She suffers social exile because she befriends Joe and doesn't keep up with styles.

Ariel's uncle bequeaths her a fortune. She goes to Paris. Joe is so maligned that he leaves town.

After he becomes an attorney those of the lower stratum of society induce him to return to Canaan. He sets up an office. Ariel returns, welcomed because of her wealth and her latest Parisian clothes.

Joe befriends a client against a mob of would-be lynchers. He frees the man at the trial and exposes the leader of the "respectable" set as a miserable hypocrite.

Of course, that makes Joe a hero of the town and the husband of Ariel.

Tom Meighan, as the hero, is unsuited to the part. The part would have better suited some actor of the type

MR. WEST WIND

"WHAT FOR?" MR. WEST WIND WANTED TO KNOW.

"Ho, ho!" shouted Mr. West Wind, "who's there?"

"Mr. Sprinkle-Blow and his helpers," answered Nick through the door.

"Will you please come out?"

"What for?" Mr. West Wind wanted to know, but just the same he opened his front door open with his breath and came blustering out.

"What for?"

"Sprinkle-Blow told him the trouble. 'Howdy Thunder and Jumpy Lightning are out,' said he. 'Howdy took his big bass drum and Jumpy took his dazzy flashlight and they escaped from the House of the Nuisance Fairies where I thought I had 'em locked up safe and sound, and they're down there (Sprinkle-Blow said 'down' because you see West Wind's house was on a star high above the clouds.

"They're down there jumping 'round on the black clouds above the earth and scaring folks dreadfully. Why, Will Woodpecker tumbled clear out of the maple tree and Nancy and Nick here turned back somersaults they were so surprised."

"Well?" bellowed West Wind. He really tried to speak softly, but West Wind's slightest whisper was a roar.

"What about it?"

"We want you to chase them away, please," said Nancy. "If you blow the black clouds away, they won't have anything to stand on and they'll have to go home."

"Ho, ho!" laughed West Wind delightedly. "That's just what I'll do. If there is anything that I love, it is to blow clouds around. Clouds are my specialty, you know. I blow 'em places and then I blow 'em away. Folks say I blow on the moon and the sun, and that's all wrong. I just blow clouds over their heads sometimes. I'll go at once and 'Thunder and Lightning will have to find another place to play for awhile."

In a flash he was gone and the next thing the travelers heard was a huffing and puffing sound that sounded all through the sky.

PRETTY BUSY MAN IS THE TRAFFIC OFFICER

Take the patience of Job, and the eye of a hawk. For the fellows who ride and the fellows who walk. Sturdy build that's not frightened by standing all day. With a smile for the little ones crossing the way.

Information for strangers that's brief and exact.

Spice well with alertness and judgment and tact.

An instinct like lightning, for "Go" and for "Stop."

Add a dash of good nature. Result: Traffic Cop.

If you put a nervous, impatient man in the place of Officer Frank J. Donovan, "traffic cop" at the depot, he would probably go crazy inside of an hour.

Or if you put a cantankerous, angry fellow there, he undoubtedly would have killed the writer when he dodged to the control of the street, crowded with vehicles and pedestrians, all watching his signals, and announced that he sought an interview.

But, fortunately for him and for the throngs which pass the depot crossing in an endless stream, Officer Donovan is neither impatient nor of an unpleasant disposition. The best proof of this is that, although he doesn't want publicity, and seeks only to do his duty for duty's sake, quietly and unobtrusively, he listened affably to a volley of fool questions, and took it all in good part when he insisted on "writing him up" despite his protests.

The most interesting thing which struck the writer, however, was the fact that while he obstructed the officer's vision in one direction, and engaged him in conversation at the same time, he calmly gestured motor cars and people on foot without the slightest indication of a snag. The river of traffic flowed smoothly on. Edgar Allan Poe once offended an acquaintance by writing while the latter was conversing with him. The poet, finally perceiving his friend's pique, explained that he was "dividing his mind." This, Poe explained, was a salutary mental exercise which involved paying close and polite attention to his friend's remarks while at the same time composing an intelligible letter. Officer Donovan may not be a poet; but he has certainly acquired the faculty for which Poe strove. Perhaps this is a secret which all good traffic officers have mastered, for time and again one sees them giving courteous ear to a questioner who wishes to be directed to some street, and simultaneously regulating the autos and foot-passers.

In his ignorance, the writer did not gain a full realization of this remarkable ability until it was explained by Officer Donovan. He thought that his guidance of traffic must have become mechanical. But Officer Donovan explained: "You cannot hold this job mechanically. When the time comes that such is possible, they will have machines to do the job," he said.

"It's necessary to keep thinking at all times. For example, suppose a slow-moving car is near, and a rapidly-moving machine is a little farther away. There's no way I know of to decide which to halt and which to let by, except thinking."

A limousine curved around the square in what seemed to me a rather uncomfortable proximity. "Don't you ever come near getting hit?" he was asked. For answer he pointed downward, where his stand exhibited splintered edges. "I've had a few narrow escapes all right," he replied calmly. "You see a machine's wheel over this. But when it did, I had moved to some-such a thing as there being a low-speed limit as well as a high-speed one. One old fellow said, Officer Donovan related, "Some places they get after you if you go more than 25 miles an hour, and some places they hop on you if you go less than 25 miles an hour." You'll have to agree that there's some justification for being confused under such circumstances.

Officer Donovan is a tall, agile man, with eyes which twinkle in good humor, and a smile which is as warm as a mystery what on earth he needs glasses for. Certainly not for shortsightedness. Maybe they reflect things in back of him, for he actually seems to be able to see on all sides of the square at once. He has been four years at his present station, after spending fourteen on a route.

Traffic grew faster and more furious. Without losing a particle of his equanimity or his evenness of temper, Officer Donovan kept everything moving. Two little girls were on the sidewalk in front of the Richardson hotel. They flashed him a smile and waved their hands to him as he saw to it that they got across safely. What a job! We talk of careers, and opportunities for service, and a lot of similar high-sounding things, but what one of us can say that we do more for the world than this blue-clothed "traffic cop," protector and friend of little children in the rush and swirl of money-grubbing city life? Now machines were skimming by. Officer Donovan semaphored now right, now left, now directly in the front. Never an instant's indecision or hesitation. How does he do it? Yet, thick as the traffic was, it must ordinarily be thicker; for Thorndike street was closed, undergoing repairs.

Police Capture "Airplane Burglars"

NEW YORK, July 13.—Four men, declared by police to be the "airplane burglars" who have perpetrated a series of silk robberies on upper floors of loft buildings, were captured early today on the roof of a 20-story building. The aerial robber had kicked a window out and was preparing to enter the establishment of David Herstein, merchant, where a large quantity of silk was stored.

such a thing as there being a low-speed limit as well as a high-speed one. One old fellow said, Officer Donovan related, "Some places they get after you if you go more than 25 miles an hour, and some places they hop on you if you go less than 25 miles an hour." You'll have to agree that there's some justification for being confused under such circumstances.

Officer Donovan is a tall, agile man, with eyes which twinkle in good humor, and a smile which is as warm as a mystery what on earth he needs glasses for. Certainly not for shortsightedness. Maybe they reflect things in back of him, for he actually seems to be able to see on all sides of the square at once. He has been four years at his present station, after spending fourteen on a route.

Traffic grew faster and more furious. Without losing a particle of his equanimity or his evenness of temper, Officer Donovan kept everything moving. Two little girls were on the sidewalk in front of the Richardson hotel. They flashed him a smile and waved their hands to him as he saw to it that they got across safely. What a job! We talk of careers, and opportunities for service, and a lot of similar high-sounding things, but what one of us can say that we do more for the world than this blue-clothed "traffic cop," protector and friend of little children in the rush and swirl of money-grubbing city life? Now machines were skimming by. Officer Donovan semaphored now right, now left, now directly in the front. Never an instant's indecision or hesitation. How does he do it? Yet, thick as the traffic was, it must ordinarily be thicker; for Thorndike street was closed, undergoing repairs.

If You Want This Three-Legged Dog He's Yours For the Asking

Have you a three-legged dog in your home? If you haven't here is a swell chance to get one for the Lowell Humane society is looking for a home for just such an animal.

Maxie—that's his name—was formerly owned by John F. Corfield of 24 Clifford street. He is a brindle pointer and is perfectly normal in every respect except that one of his front legs was missing when he was born. He has four brothers and sisters but they all have the regulation number of feet.

Maxie is now a year and a half old and is as lively as any dog with four legs. He can run and jump and is so full of the joy of life that it seems a pity to consign him to the gas box but that will be his fate unless some kind person offers him a home. He is now being boarded temporarily at the home of John W. Duncann of the Humane society.

DRUGGISTS' ANNUAL OUTING TOMORROW

The annual outing of the Lowell Druggists' association will be held on Thursday at Whalom park, Fitchburg, and for this eventful occasion the drug stores will close Thursday morning at 10:30 and remain closed the rest of the day. Sidelights From the Adams Hardware and Paint Co. Store

Miss Batchelder, one of our book-keepers says:

"Beauty is only skin deep. A gold brick always looks good. It has to. Its promising appearance is its sole virtue. Looks alone will not sell goods today."

She is right. Merchandise with a name—the name of its maker—has the call.

The reason we have no trouble in selling our hardware and paint today is because the name of the maker is no secret.

Hardware and paint have been going through our doors for more than fifty years.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By Theatres' Own Press Agents.)

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Final performances of "The Mystery Road," starring David Powell, will be given at the Merrimack Square theatre this evening. Tomorrow there will be an entire change of program.

Featuring the bill for the second part of the week will be William Desmond, the capable dramatic actor, in "Women Men Love." The other leading attraction will be "Wings of Pride," starring pretty Olive Tell.

The setting of "Women Men Love" is exceptionally interesting.

David Hunter, whose work as an architect has brought him fame and a fair amount of riches, is deeply in love with his wife Evelyn and their union has been blessed with a three year old baby Dora. Hunter is a serious man living only in his work, his home, his wife and his child. Evelyn Hunter is a shallow, pleasure-loving grown-up child. She cares for her husband and child in a matter-of-fact way but ahead of everything else she has the material pleasures of life.

With the Hunters lives Ruth Gibson, Evelyn's sister, two years older, and who has acted as a mother to Mrs. Hunter. Ruth sees how things are going with her every day and is bent on keeping Evelyn and David together as much for their own sakes as that of the child.

The action of the piece is increasingly absorbing and the finale is one of the most dramatic seen here in many months.

"Wings of Pride" unfolds on the screen a story that is truly team with rare dramatic incidents, sensational scenes and real thrills. Two of the most exciting incidents in this peculiarly entertaining drama show a brutal political boss making violent advances to the beautiful daughter of a man he holds in his power, while another depicts the exciting race of an automobile with an express train, the driver of the car endeavoring to beat the train to a crossing.

A comedy and the International News complete the bill.

THE STRAND

The last showing today of the special Selenick picture, "Red Foam," at The Strand today should attract another large audience, both afternoon and night. It's a great picture and has all of the action and tense situations needed to make it enjoyable.

"The Dangerous Moment," with Carmel Myers is the other good thing on the bill to say nothing of Larry Semon in "Rent Collector." For the last three days beginning tomorrow, Alice Joyce in "Her Lord and Master," and Harry Carey in "The Freeze Out" will be offered together with a comedy and weekly.

As a stage play, "Her Lord and Master" made a big hit on Broadway. As a picture it will score even better for it is one of those stories that affords excellent opportunity to bring to the surface many wonderfully interesting details that help build for the big climaxes that mark the piece. Miss Joyce is again seen in a charming role that offers her a chance to reflect her exceptional talent.

Harry Carey will surely make new friends in "The Freeze Out." The story concerns a stranger that rides into a lawless town and calmly at Boston yesterday after enjoying a brief furlough at the home of his parents. The young man is now at Gloucester, where he expects to spend the remainder of the summer. Seaman Coulombe has been in the United States navy for close to three years, having enlisted at the age of 17. This is his first trip to his home in 14 months, during which time he was cruising the Pacific coast with the supply ship Houston. His visit was a real surprise to his parents, and accordingly they tendered him a reception at their home Monday night. The affair was largely attended and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Entertainment numbers were given with Leo Betten-court at the piano and refreshments were served.

Beaverdale Citizens Tell Police They Will Have to Protect "Foreigners"

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 13.—Many townsmen here last night following a mass meeting of American citizens who are said to have reiterated their intention of driving out the undesirable foreign element alleged to have been responsible for numerous crimes committed at Beaverdale within the last few months.

State police on duty at Beaverdale attended the meeting and were told it is reported that the objectionable element must leave the community. "If they do not," the speaker is reported as saying, "you policemen may stay here and protect them but we will get them sooner or later, perhaps tonight, even against your opposition."

The state troopers, according to the reports, advised those against whom feeling ran high, to leave the town and an exodus began which is said to have proceeded quietly.

Five buildings were dynamited and a number of foreign residents driven from their homes Monday night, according to reports reaching Cambria county authorities.

VACATION SEASON IN FULL SWING

This is the season when Lowell people are gleefully packing up their trunks and bags and heading for the vacation season. The vacation season is in full swing. Officials of the Boston & Maine railroad reported this morning that this year comes very close to establishing a record for the number of vacationists leaving the city.

For two weeks the men who handle the baggage at the Middlesex street depot have been deluged with a steady stream of trunks, bags and luggage of all kinds. The beaches seem to be more popular with vacationists just now. Old Orchard, Hampton and Ocean Park being in the lead. Later on exodus to the mountains is expected. The mountain travel is always heavier later in the season than it is during the early summer months, railroad officials say.

Preparations are being made for a record rush during the first part of August for it is then that the vacation travel is heaviest and from all indications the Boston & Maine trains will carry capacity loads during that period.

Local steamship offices also report a good business. Lowell people do not go in for ocean travel as extensively as do the people from the bigger cities but the coastwise traffic between Boston and New York has been well patronized. Nova Scotia and other points to the north are also popular.

Forty Polish residents of this city will leave this evening for New York city where they will board a Red Star liner for Poland. They will spend the summer in the old country after which most of them will return to America. This is the first opportunity that has been given to local Poles for visiting their mother country and these forty people are joyfully taking advantage of it.

FIRST HOLIDAY FOR D. L. PAGE COMPANY

Since its organization over 60 years ago the D. L. Page Co. has never closed its doors during the day, not even on Sunday or holidays, but tomorrow will be the first annual outing of the employees of the company, which will be conducted at the expense of the concern.

The affair will be for all employees of the company, their wives and children, and the outing will be held at Salisbury beach. It is expected that between 120 and 140 men, women and children will participate and all are scheduled to leave the restaurant in Merrimack square at 8.30 o'clock tomorrow morning. The trip to the seashore will be in automobiles, fourteen touring cars having been chartered for the occasion.

Names of Lowell Men Secured

Liquor brigade were asked by the Fyngsbore authorities to assist them in making an unexpected visitation to the estate, said to have been engaged by parties unknown, as a road house, and to have been distinguished by joyous gatherings of autoists numbering Lowell people and residents of other localities. During the past months, it is stated, complaints have been registered against the happenings at the house, and the joint raid by the local officers and the Fyngsbore police was aimed as a clean-up of the alleged headquarters for sub rosa parties with men not unknown to the public eye as participants.

But somebody, apparently, had "tipped off" the occupants. When the descent was made upon the building, instead of a mad rush by merry-makers for windows and other means of exit, a dead silence greeted the invaders. Information was received to the effect that a short time before the officers approached these in possession of their tents like the Arabs and silently stole away, or as silently as their motor trucks and other means of conveyance would permit. Information was also unearthed indicating that for a month had been paid as rent for the estate.

Two girls, whose names are withheld, were the only persons present when the visitation was made. The pair, who stated that they are from Boston, told the officers the names of alleged visitors of the resort and these names were carefully noted by the representatives of the law. What action, if any, is to be taken, was not revealed, but it is stated definitely that professional men of this city, as well as of Nashua, N. H., may be involved.

After the two girls had given their information to the raiders they were released, as no specific charges were made against them. It is understood that they claimed that other young women have been at the house, but departed when the "tip" came.

The Sun has been unable to locate any Capt. Becker in Lowell answering to the description of the man mentioned in the foregoing despatch. However, it has learned that there is a Lieut. Becker connected with the Stutz Automobile Co. in Boston and that he has made business trips here. He is known to a number of local automobile men.

on this latter charge, additional evidence was furnished by Lieutenant Petrie which led to the finding of liquor this morning in the Aiken street district, where Clark was taken handcuffed to point out the place it was disposed of. It is hoped by the authorities that the greater part of the rare and valuable wet goods will be recovered.

Hall, a young man of neat and intelligent appearance, was bailed shortly before noon today, and left the police station in company with his bondsman. Prior to his release, he was for a time closeted with members of the force in the inspectors' room. He was taken into custody by Lieutenant Petrie in the early hours of this morning, after a warrant had been sworn out against him on the improper conduct charge. It is stated that he then made admissions relative to the theft of liquors, after questioning.

USE OF ABBREVIATION LEADS TO CHARGES

NEW YORK, July 13.—The use of the abbreviation "Col." in what purported to be the signature of the late Theodore Roosevelt is one of the reasons for the preferring of a charge of forgery against Mrs. Emma Richardson Burdett of Hilledale, Ind. She has tried to collect $25,000 from the Roosevelt estate on a note she says was endorsed by the colonial and signed during the progressive convention at Chicago in 1912 by Charles J. Shunston, whom she described as a former Rough Rider.

Assistant District Attorney Dooling of New York who has been investigating the matter in behalf of the Roosevelt family, said today that members of the family told him the colonial never used the title in his signature.

Investigation also revealed, Mr. Dooling said, that Mr. Roosevelt went without sleep for 36 consecutive hours while in Chicago in 1912; that members of the family were with him throughout that period, and that none of them saw him sign a document of any kind.

Search of records of the Rough Riders has failed to disclose any Charles J. Shunston, Mr. Dooling says.

ACTION IS DEFERRED ON PERJURY CHARGE

The case of Antonios Christofilas, charged with perjury and arrested yesterday morning in open court at the local police court session, by order of Judge Enright, had his case continued today to July 22. Judge Enright explained that the case is the first of its kind to come before the court here, and that he wished to confer relative to its disposition with the Boston authorities. In the latter city, he stated, there have been a number of such cases in the police court.

Christofilas testified yesterday in the case of John Strogles, charged with illegal keeping of intoxicating liquor, that moonshine found on the latter's premises really had been left there by himself. As he added that he came for his hound and found it gone one day prior to the time the liquor raiders actually descended upon Strogles' establishment, he was arrested for perjury, on order of His Honor, who declared "this perjury has got to stop."

Christofilas was held in bonds of $500. Surely was furnished.

Other Cases Called

The case of Albanio R. Dion, charged with receiving stolen property July 23, 1920, was put over to tomorrow. The complaint alleges that he accepted cigars, cigarettes, candy, bananas, gum and money to the value of $5.50. He recently surrendered himself, after the police had been searching for him for nearly a year.

The case of Henry A. Coburn, charged with non-support of his wife, was put over to July 16. Two drunkennes cases were filed.

Everett Ellis, held on a complaint lodged by a girl, had his case continued for a week. He pleaded not guilty, and bonds were fixed at $500.

LIQUOR FINES NEAR THE $1000 MARK

Another aftermath of the recent wholesale raids by the liquor officers was the case of John A. H. heard in the police court this morning on charges of illegally keeping liquor, and fined $150. Pleas by the defendant's counsel that the minimum fine of $100 be imposed were in vain. It was stated by A. H.'s attorney that the former had promised to cease his violations of the law. But Judge Enright referred to evidence that peculiar circumstances of aggravation have existed, and that it has, in effect, been defying the law, as many complaints have been lodged against his place during the past months. Yesterday several hundred dollars were collected in fines, and today's fine sends the total soaring the $1000 mark.

NO ACTION TAKEN ON JEWELERS' PETITION

No final action has yet been taken by the license commission, relative to the petition of the local Retail Jewelers' association that auctioneers be compelled to observe the regular business hours of stores here. At last evening's meeting, however, the matter was discussed with Frank Ricard, prominent local jeweler and official of the association, and also with auctioneers who have done business in this city. No indication of the decision to be adopted by the members of the board was made.

Prize for Sinking of Jap Warship

PATERSON, N. J., July 13.—The first American crew to capture or sink a Japanese warship in event of a war between the United States and Japan, would receive a prize of 5000 German marks by the will of Charles O. The will, made on April 19, 1910, creates a 5000 mark trust fund, the income of which is to go to buy firewood for the poor of Paterson, unless this country gets into war with Japan. Then the principal is to go for the prize.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 13.—The bulk of the delegates to the Grand Lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks were spectators today at the drill team contest at Exposition park, while the executive officers were considering selection of a site for the projected $2,500,000 national headquarters of the order, and whether a national publication should be established. Eudore Larochelle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector G. Larochelle of Moody st., Framingham, had a narrow escape from serious injury this forenoon, when the bicycle he was riding was wrecked at the junction of Merrimack and John streets by an automobile truck. The boy was riding towards city hall on the right hand side of Merrimack st., when at the junction of John street he slowed down to allow a truck to pass. Following the truck was another big truck, which was rounding the corner pretty fast. In order to avoid being struck by the second truck, the boy jumped and the wheels of the heavy machine passed over his bicycle, wrecking it. The name of the driver of the truck could not be learned.

Use of Public Schols Barred keynote of the solicitor's opinion which will act as a bar to the school board's plan to place in the elementary grades of the city's schools. In the high school, of course, there is a natural demand for instruction in modern languages but by the time they reach high school most children have American ideals and the American language firmly implanted in their minds.

Even though the local Lithuanians planned to have instruction given by public officers, Mr. Regan doubts the validity and propriety of the expenditure of public money for such a purpose. He says it is clear that the people of the commonwealth through the formal language employed in the constitution have expressly prohibited the use of public school property for any purpose other than public purposes directly controlled and supervised by public officers.

The solicitor's opinion will come formally before the school committee at its next meeting and it is probable that the petitioners who sought the use of the Charles street school will be denied their prayer.

Mr. Regan's opinion, which in the estimation of school department officials, will prove an important hindrance to the aspirations of foreign-born people to have their children instructed in their own language before they receive instruction in English, is in detail as follows:

To the School Committee, Gentlemen:

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your query, made through Hugh J. McGee, superintendent of schools, regarding the validity of granting the request of certain citizens of Lowell, who claim to represent five Lithuanian societies, and request being in the form of a petition, praying for the use of certain school room or rooms in a public school in the city during the summer months for the purpose of teaching their children to read and write in the Lithuanian language.

Under date of Jan. 7, 1921, I gave to your committee an opinion that you had no authority to grant the use of any school "for private school uses, or any purpose whatsoever" other than for public school purposes.

I beg to call to your attention section 2 of article 18 of the constitution of the commonwealth, which in part is as follows:

... and no grant, appropriation or use of public money or property or loan of public credit shall be made or authorized by the commonwealth or any political department thereof for the purpose of founding, maintaining or aiding any school or institution of learning, whether under public control or otherwise, wherein any denominational doctrine is inculcated, or any other school, or any college, infirmary, hospital, institution, or educational, charitable, or religious undertaking which is not publicly owned and under the exclusive control, order and superintendence of public officers or public agents authorized by the commonwealth or federal authority, or both.

It is clear that the people of the commonwealth, through the formal language employed in the constitution have expressly prohibited the use of public school property for any purpose other than public purposes directly controlled and supervised by public officers.

The petition addressed to the school committee requests the use of a school building or part thereof for teaching during the summer months a foreign language, and it appears in the petition that this work is to be done by other than public officers. If this work were to be done by public officers, the validity as well as the propriety of such an expenditure of public moneys might seriously be questioned.

In conclusion I would advise your committee that it has no authority to grant any part of the property of the commonwealth for the purpose of placing its custody and control for any purpose other than public school purposes. Therefore, it is my opinion that you have no authority to grant the prayer of said petition.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM D. REGAN,
City Solicitor.

THE DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

Disarmament as favored by Senator Borah may soon reach the realm of discussion between the United States and other great nations. The invitation of President Harding to such a conference has been accepted by England and France and is likely to be accepted by Japan and Italy.

In the discussion of the question in the London press, it appears that various questions constituting international barriers must first be removed and that then disarmament will come automatically.

There is no general definition as to what is implied in this term "disarmament," so freely used in the agitation. The United States uses it in reference to limitation of naval armaments and despite the fact that neither England nor France would consider a reduction of their land forces, yet the United States has acted independently and reduced its army to 160,000.

Judging from the clat with which the announced acceptance of the president's invitation was received in London, it is quite probable that this movement will be made the pretext for turning the United States into some of the leading international controversies, such as might properly be settled by the League of Nations if it functioned according to its constitution. It is quite probable that among the things to be discussed before disarmament will be the open door in China, Shanghai, Yip, the near eastern conflict, and in fact the chief issues that disturb the world today, with the exception of the Bolshevikism of Russia and the Irish question. An effort will be made to convert the conference into a sort of executive council of the League of Nations or a body having the same purpose. Apparently the allied powers would revamp the League of Nations council or abolish it and establish a new organization acceptable to the United States, so anxious are they to have this nation join them in upholding their power and rehabilitating the war-worn world.

It is noticeable that the greatest possible deference is shown this disarmament movement in London as British statesmen are most anxious to get into closer relations with the United States. In reference to their motive, there need be no misconception as to its character. It is not altruistic, nor is it based upon the desire to comply with the wishes of the United States from a humanitarian point of view, nor, their aim, as usual, is to promote the interests of the British empire and in addition to give the rest of the world to understand that Uncle Sam stands at John Bull's side ready to aid him in any emergency. Even the moral force of the United States behind England would greatly increase her power throughout the world; but the United States cannot be a party to oppression, or the exploitation of defenceless peoples.

STAND UP FOR NEW ENGLAND

This is the time to boom New England interests when, according to Governor Cox, the tariff bill before congress discriminates against New England industries. The port of Boston is discriminated against in various ways both in railroad and shipping matters. These conditions will not be remedied unless the people concerned fight for their own protection. It is up to New England, up to her cities and towns and her chambers of commerce to see that no law shall be passed at Washington to cast a blight upon such industrial cities as Lowell, Lawrence, Fall River, New Bedford and Worcester. Boston should be able to take care of herself, but apparently she is not, as much business that should pass through the port of Boston is diverted to New York.

It is high time to boom New England, and to defend her industries; but for Lowell, it is necessary for her citizens to boom her industries, her resources, her factories, and her quiet, peaceable and industrious people.

It is in order to get new industries started here to aid those we already have by offering more employment which will benefit all. We have ideal factory sites along the Merrimack and Concord rivers; and it is the duty of our municipal council, our chamber of commerce and every other body to induce new enterprises to locate here. We have the greatest textile school in the world, one of the greatest machine shops for the manufacture of textile machinery; and with varied industries of other lines, Lowell is one of the greatest factory cities of New England.

REVIVING THE LEAGUE ISSUE

There is some talk of having the Versailles treaty resubmitted in order to have it so modified as to be acceptable to the United States. In that case, the League of Nations would be either eliminated or modified and called by another name. President Harding is pledged to form an association of nations for promoting peace; and this would enable him to save his face.

England is trying in every way possible to induce the United States to join the allied powers in straightening out the European tangle. It may be this object that induced Lloyd George to seek a settlement of the Irish question as a means of placating the enemies of the League of Nations in this country.

Senator Walsh in a recent speech declared that the United States would enter no alliance with any foreign nation until the evidence is clear that it will be built upon the rocks of liberty and justice for all peoples everywhere and that its purpose shall be beyond question to preserve peace and good will in the world. The international court of justice appears to be established only for the members of the League of Nations and its functions are denied to other nations even where there is the most indisputable evidence of injustice and oppression. That cannot properly be termed a court of international justice. Its functions must be extended before it deserves the title given it.

PEACE IN IRELAND

One of the most hopeful symptoms of a change in sentiment in Ireland is seen in the absence of any serious rioting in Belfast on the twelfth of July. The Orangemen paraded through the streets according to their program, put their orange arches across the thoroughfares as usual, played their party tunes and indulged their party slogans ad libitum, but nobody interfered with them; and under the circumstances it was noteworthy that they did not provoke any outbreak. It appears, therefore, that there was unusual restraint exercised on both sides and this in Belfast on the thirtieth anniversary of the battle of the Boyne indicates a change in sentiment, if not a desire to respect the truce and to help in the other provinces the truce is being religiously observed and the most earnest hopes are entertained that from the conference to be held in London may come a settlement that will bring peace with liberty and an end to the struggle that has been waged for 700 years.

PRESIDENT HARDING'S MESSAGE

Service men who risked their lives for the flag will respect the appeal of President Harding when he seeks delay on the proposition to pass a bonus bill that would call for an expenditure of two or three billion dollars. If it would injure the country, already under a serious business depression, these men are certainly patriotic enough to waive their claims for the present with the understanding that these claims must be met just as soon as the government can provide the money without financial disaster. In plain terms, the government cannot now afford to do justice to its service men, although it has outstanding loans to other nations that would cover all demands more than twice over, but which it cannot collect. The American soldier is thus the victim of circumstances but he can rest assured that in the end he will receive full justice at the hands of the government. There is no denying the logic of facts as presented by President Harding.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

It is estimated that 5000 men, women and children have been killed by automobiles in the United States since January 1. Responsibility for these casualties is said to be equally divided between the carelessness of automobile drivers and the carelessness of pedestrians.

At the same time cities all over the country report that despite the intense heat that has prevailed, the infant mortality rate is on the downgrade, because the germ diseases that formerly killed babies have been all but conquered. The lives that we save through sanitation we lose through carelessness in driving and walking. We have conquered the hidden menaces to our health but we seem unable to conquer our own follies.

POSTAL WELFARE WORK

Postmaster General Hays has established a welfare department for postal employees and secured a competent insurance man to conduct it. It is estimated that there are 300,000 employees in the department and it is expected that this work will extend to every postoffice of importance in the country. The postal workers deserve it. They are probably the hardest worked of all Uncle Sam's employees. This step will be commended as an installment of what the men deserve.

Is it reasonable to suppose that any set of men will voluntarily render better service than they would if bound by a solemn contract, specifying their work for every detail? Or is it fair to charge that men who work under contract and who are held financially responsible for the proper performance of the work contracted for, are dishonest and unreliable? The fact that occasionally a contractor fails to live up to the specifications laid down, does not reflect upon the general body of contractors. One black sheep in a flock does not prove that all are of the same hue.

The money value of the resources of the United States is estimated to have shrunk about twenty-five billion dollars since the period of deflation set in. That is about equal to the total of our national debt. Still the shrinkage goes on and it can't be stopped unless by policies that would be more injurious.

"Are the city government members simply taking rope enough?" asks the Lawrence Telegram. Up here members in the past have taken enough to provide for the hanging of the form of government under which they served.

There are 2,000,000 more men in the United States than women. If the sexes should split on some national issue, the men could outvote the women by the part of that majority that is made up of registered voters. It might be slightly over a million.

Not to Be Tolerated

"I see a visitor to New York was arrested the other day because he had $350 in his pocket," said Church. "And it wasn't his own money?" asked Gotham.

"O yes; it was proved in court that it was his own money," replied Church. "Why on earth did they arrest him, then?"

"He was trying to get out of town with it."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Especially Now

Mrs. Chapman Catt, the eminent suffragist, said at a dinner in Washington:

"Women in business are more honest than men. For instance, they can't be bribed."

"No?" said a senator. "No," said Mrs. Chapman Catt. "But men now—well, every man has his price."

"And hasn't every woman," the senator retorted, "hasn't every woman, especially these days, her figure?"—Detroit Free Press.

Pretty Good, We'll Say

An English farmer had for a long time been petitioning the local council to fill up a deep mud hole on the common before his house, but without result. One very wet night, as he was seated comfortably before his fire, a cry for help was heard from the outside. The farmer, seeing a lantern, opened the door and peered out into the darkness, to find that three councilors on their way home from a meeting, had mislaid their way across the common and were now struggling in the mud hole. "Well, gentlemen," said the son of the soil, as he surveyed them grimly, "I am glad to see you stirring in this matter at last."

The Lost Ticket

Ever go to the theatre, baseball game or make a trip, and then discover your ticket was missing? Ever hunt through your pockets, do it again and then once more without success? It's a terrible sensation. The only thing to do is to ask some "copper" to search you. This was proven at the Oakland movie. Railroad Policeman H. Hughes saw a well-dressed, James' man, sitting wildly around the local electric trains at the movie, followed by two excited and voluble countrymen. Hughes questioned the excited man and learned that he had come to the movie on a local train to take a train to Chicago and had lost his ticket. He was trying to find the car which had carried him to the movie. Hughes found it, but the ticket was not found in the car. The Japanese was overcome. He would miss his train, and the money for his ticket had been paid.

"Looked through your pockets?" asked Hughes. "O, yes. Three times."

"Mind if I look?" asked Hughes. "Thank you, please."

So Hughes "looked" the traveler and found the ticket in the inside pocket of his overcoat.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Before and After

When Phyllis slipped and almost fell before we two were wed and one. I said: 'My dear, I cannot tell you how I am at what you've done! Are you unhurt—quite safe, my dear? Is there not some place, far or near, where I can go and get you safe? You'd do sooth me, I'm afraid!'

When Phyllis stumbled now, since we together until death must be. I clasp my lips together tightly. That I may not exclaim (and rightly):

"Good zosh! As often as you've been Along this path with children in. You seem capable of knowing. They're there—please watch where you are going!"—FARM LIFE.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

A member of the local police force who read out a little note in a recent issue of the Lawrence Telegram, the numerous devices of carnival fakirs for "gypping" the public, volunteers an instance of the lieutenant's skill, which was observed at the recent celebration on the South common. It appears that at one booth an "electrical horse race" was being shown. The person betting on the horse nearest the finishing mark when the wheel holding all the horses stopped, was entitled to a prize. The lieutenant, watching the wheel, noted after a bit that the horse having the smallest amount bet on him was invariably the victor. He also noted that just prior to the time the wheel ceased revolving, the proprietor of the booth leaned noachalantly against a nearby stand. "I think I'm going to try the wheel myself," remarked Dave and entered the booth. He turned the switch, and the horses started to move. They continued to move for some three minutes, a much longer time than they had been revolving while the "boss" had been on the job. Then, starting the wheel again, the lieutenant, leaning against the same place as had the proprietor, instantly the wheel

SMALL BODY OF QUAKERS

Numbering about 115,000, They Are Distributed From Coast to Coast

RICHMOND, Ind., July 13.—What are the present activities of the Quakers, has been asked recently. Numerically, "the Friends of America," as they are called are a small body numbering about 115,000 but distributed from coast to coast.

On the Atlantic coast are New England, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and North Carolina yearly meetings; on the Pacific coast, California and Oregon yearly meetings, the latter extending into Washington and Idaho, inland states in which Friends are well represented are Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and Kansas.

American Quakerism has two capitals, the older and more conservative at Philadelphia, the newer at Richmond, Ind. Within a radius of 100 miles of Richmond are to be found approximately one-fourth of American Quakers.

While intensely individualistic in principles and practices, Friends are long known to unite for accomplishing worth while tasks. Otherwise they could not have joined so readily in perfecting the machinery of the American Friends' Service committee, with headquarters at Philadelphia, which has done a monumental relief work in Europe.

The majority of American yearly meetings are united in a national organization, the Five Years Meeting of Friends in America, which carries on a comprehensive and growing work at home and abroad. The headquarters of this organization are located in Richmond, where the executive staffs of the national boards are housed in their own office building.

Friends have long been active in foreign mission work. Few as they are in numbers, their missionary efforts well high encircle the globe, including work in Japan, China, India, Africa, Syria, Mexico, Central America, Cuba and Jamaica.

At home a principal concern of Friends is for the cause of international peace and good will. Theirs is regarded here as the only religious body having a national board on peace. Just now it is very active in the fight for universal disarmament.

In addition to a number of private secondary schools, Quakers support ten colleges, not including Bryn Mawr, which is controlled by a board of trustees composed of Friends.

One of the big events of the Quaker year is the annual summer conference of Young Friends conducted at Earlham college, Richmond, under the auspices of the Young Friends Board of the Five Years meeting. It is attended by young Quaker men and women from all parts of the country.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE

ALUMNI PRESIDENT

Joseph F. Montminy, the well known jeweler, was last evening unanimously chosen president of St. Joseph's college alumni for the ensuing year at a meeting of the organization, which was held in the college hall in Merrimack street. There was a large attendance and plans for the annual outing, which will be held Aug. 11 at the Glenox club camp in Tyngsboro were perfected.

The other officers chosen without opposition were as follows: Adelford L. Clou, vice president; Arthur H. Clou, financial secretary; Joseph Bergeron, recording secretary; Victor Alexander, assistant recording secretary; Louis Lemire, treasurer. Student directors were nominated and of that number five will be elected on the day of the outing.

In the course of the meeting a vote of thanks was extended to the retiring president, Arthur Gaudette and a committee was appointed to organize baseball teams for the outing. Rev. Bro. Florentius, director of the college, was present and spoke at length on the good of the organization, urging all to do their utmost for the advancement of the association. There were also remarks by the officers.

STOLEN AUTO FOUND

IN VARNUM AVE.

The Hudson coupe, owned by Adolph Lamontagne of Colonial avenue, which was stolen from his garage in Mt. Hope street early yesterday morning, was recovered at a point near the Varnum avenue at a point near the entrance to the Lowell General hospital. The front bumper of the car was broken, while there were other small damages which may amount to about $50.

The car remained in Varnum avenue all day despite the fact that a description of it had been given to the police. It was first seen at 5 o'clock yesterday morning by a resident of the avenue, who at 5:30 o'clock became suspicious and examined the machine. It was then that he recognized it as the Lamontagne machine and drove it to the Lamontagne home. Later the police were informed that the machine had been recovered.

It came to a standstill. It was controlled perfectly by the man in charge, and he was able to make any horse win. That booth didn't do any more business during the carnival.

I chanced to stroll down Harrison street the other evening and I beheld working in the garden just before supper Miss Honor, the mayor. With natural inquisitiveness I stole into the garden and there the mayor was industriously wielding a spade with all the grace and cock-sureness of a real, honest-to-goodness agriculturist. Not many men as busy as the mayor can boast of such a use of garden tools—because for it is in two distinct parts of the estate, and such a splendid array of vegetables. One's teeth just watered. There was corn rising majestically from the blow it had received from the heavy storm, turnips, egg plants, lettuce now giving its greenest crop, cauliflower, beans and the usual garden produce.

The mayor is an enthusiastic farmer. Likes the work and the results indicate not only a maximum of care but also a wealth of labor and energy. He gets into the garden a few times in the evening and a few in the morning and the luxuriance of the growth reflects eloquently the care of the husbandman and is sufficient compensation, he says, for the labor involved. "I love to watch the plants and vegetables grow," he said as I departed.

There is little doubt of it for he has achieved results that only the lover of nature can achieve.

Relief From Dyspepsia

All conditions of depressed vitality tend to disturb the processes of digestion. There is not a disturbed condition of life that may not affect digestion.

Few causes of indigestion are so common as thin, weak blood. It affects directly and at once the great processes of nutrition. Not only the action of the gastric and intestinal glands diminished but the muscular action of the stomach is weakened. Nothing will more promptly restore the digestive efficiency than good red blood. Without it the normal activity of the stomach is impossible.

Thin, pale people who complain of indigestion must improve the condition of their blood to find relief. The most active blood-builder in such cases is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make rich, red blood which quickly restores the digestive organs to their proper activity and the first result is hunger. The dyspeptic who has hated the sight and smell of food now looks forward to meal time with pleasurable anticipation. Care now in the selection and quantity of food will put the patient well on the road to health. A diet book, "What to Eat and How to Eat," will be sent free on request by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Price 60 cents. Adv.

"MICKY" LARKIN HERE

Famous Midwinter Swimmer Witness in Police Court

"Micky" Larkin, formerly of local fame as a swimmer in frigid water here, in holes made in the ice of the Merrimack river and other places in this section, returned to Lowell yesterday to testify in connection with a case which came before the police court.

Larkin, well remembered for his startling feats here some years ago, is now a resident of the West End, Boston. He was a boy of fourteen when he first amazed the community here by giving exhibitions in which holes were cut in the ice of the rivers and lakes hereabouts in mid-winter, and "Micky" then disported himself amid the freezing wavelets. He states that the doctors at that time had given him up as a victim of tuberculosis, but he determined to falsify the predictions of his early demise.

"Staving off consumption" was the title of his act, which is fresh in the memories of local people as one of the features of more than a decade ago. In conversation with a Sun representative, he declared that he is now in robust health, and displays no symptoms of the disease which was supposed to have him in its grip. He was first recognized yesterday when he appeared in court to testify, by Inspector Matthew McCann, formerly leading Lowell all-around athlete and sport follower. "Micky" used to swim and dive among ice cakes, mostly on the Merrimack, he said yesterday. He was recognized, after attention was called to his identity, by court officers, lawyers, and others in the court room. He appeared as a witness in a case involving a slight automobile accident. "Micky" has given up his practice of bathing amid frost-bitten waters during the past twelve years, he declared yesterday, but "once in a while I tackle it at L Street baths in Boston, or elsewhere," he said.

OUTDOOR MOVIES

Big Crowd Witnessed Opening of Park Department Outdoor Movie Season on South Common

More than 6000 men, women and children witnessed the opening performance of the park department's outdoor movie season last evening on the South common. The crowd was most orderly and enjoyed the excellent musical and photoplay program presented to the limit. Preceding the movies, there was a two-hour concert by the Magnavox and a large number of new song and dance hits were played. The movies started promptly at 8 o'clock and consisted of a fine reel Harry Carey feature, a two-reel comedy and the Screen Magazine.

This evening the same performance will be repeated at the North common and tomorrow evening probably at the Aiken street playground. The park department asks those who intend to bring babies to the performance to leave baby carriages at home as they obstruct the view of those sitting behind them.

ELKS' ANNUAL OUTING

Plans for the annual outing of the Lowell lodge of Elks were outlined at a meeting of the members last evening. This year's outing will be held at the Glenox club camp in Tyngsboro September 1. William H. Mahan is chairman of the committee in charge and Joseph Gilly, secretary.

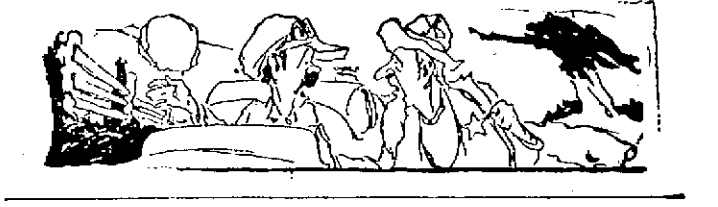

Berton Brakey's Daily Poem
Ain't It Th Truth?

HERE'S a simple bit of counsel that will help you when you motor, In no matter what community you dwell: When the traffic cop upbraids you, just forget that you're a voter, And an independent citizen as well; Though his judgment as to speeding proves him awful as a guesser And his language seems perhaps a trifle strong, Do not seek to argue with him, simply answer, "Nosir—yessir"— For the Cop is always right and you are wrong!

I WAS once a charter member of that band of foolish come-ons Who have "rights" that they insist on all the time; So I argued with policemen and got summons after summons, Till the judges came to think me steeped in crime. I have had my little lesson, I have cured that form of weakness, And I pass the information right along: Though the officer be haughty, keep an attitude of meekness— For the Cop is always right and you are wrong!

YOU may think that he is stupid, that he's muddly in the garret— And on various occasions you are right— But the diplomatic driver has the sense to grin and bear it, For he knows it's only foolishness to fight. It's a waste of time and temper, it's a wholly hopeless striving, So I've put this bit of counsel into song: Rich or poor, obscure or famous, just remember, when you're driving, That the Cop is always right and you are wrong!

Fire Sweeps Toward Summer Cottages

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 13.—Fire fighters, who thought all danger was past and who had quit their work to rest, were busily engaged today in battling the flames that broke out again yesterday at Westfield, on the St. John river. The fire was rapidly sweeping on toward the summer cottages at Hillendale, and Grand Bay was covered with smoke, so that it was impossible to see more than 50 feet ahead.

Bluebeard or Typhoid Carrier? Trial of Woman for Murder to Decide

MRS. LYDA SOUTHARD AND HER FIFTH AND PRESENT HUSBAND, PAUL VINCENT SOUTHARD.

By Newspaper Enterprise
TWIN FALLS, Ida., July 13.—Lyda Southard, deliberate modern Bluebeard or—

Lyda Southard, afflicted typhoid carrier? The question will be answered here in the fall term of court when Mrs. Southard goes on trial for murder. Prosecution and defense are marshaling their evidence. The trial promises to be the most bitter that the west has seen for years. All Idaho is aroused over it.

Mrs. Southard was arrested recently in Honolulu, charged with the murder of her fourth husband, Edward F. Meyer, a ranchman who lived near Twin Falls.

Three other of her former husbands had died as well as a daughter by the first husband and a brother of the first husband who lived with the couple. Good sized insurance policies were carried by all four of the husbands who died.

Married Fifth Time

At the time of her arrest, Mrs. Southard was living with her fifth husband, Paul Vincent Southard, a naval officer. They were married in Los Angeles, and Mrs. Southard went to Honolulu with him when he was transferred a short time later. This is the unusual matrimonial history of Mrs. Southard that the state has dug up—in impersonal facts, uncolored by the charges of the prosecution.

March 17, 1912.—Married Robert Doolley, Doolley's brother Ed came to live with them. On May 3, brothers took out joint insurance policy for $2000, naming Lyda beneficiary. On Aug. 8, 1913, Ed died and Lyda received face of policy. Next day Robert and Lyda applied for joint $2500 policy, to be

BIG GUSHERS IN ALASKA IS STILL IN LINE

Returning Fortune Seekers
Report Abundance of Oil in Northern Field

JUNEAU, Alaska, July 13.—First of the fortune-seekers to make the round trip this year to new oil fields at Fort Norman, in the MacKenzie valley of northern Canada, nine men passed through Juneau recently enroute to Edmonton, Alberta, where they will record their locations on oil lands.

"I believe the district will be a world beater," John McDonald, one of the "sourdough" leaders of the party said. "One gusher at Norman produced 1500 barrels a day, according to reports which I believe are below the correct figures."

Every member of the party said the oil was of high grade and asserted it was used in the Fort Norman country for lighting and heating and even was used, without being changed from its crude state, in gas engines.

The nine men "pushed" into the old fields over a 750-mile trail, part of which was snow-covered, across the continental divide from White Horse, Yukon territory. They made the trip to Norman in twenty-one days, which is considered very fast time and used thirty-five dogs to pull their sleds.

Originally most of the men came from Vancouver, B. C., which they left on March 5, of this year, coming north to Skagway, Alaska, and crossing the White Pass and Yukon route by the railroad. Leaving White Horse March 13, they took the trail to Carmacks, on the Yukon river, and then struck out across the mountains for the big Canadian basin. At Fort Norman they found themselves among the first stampede of the year to get "inside."

Hundreds of men from Canada and the United States are planning to go to the new fields this year over the Canadian route, through Edmonton, Fort McMurray and Peace River. Most of this route is by steamboat down the Peace and MacKenzie rivers. Although fast time can be made in summer over this interior route, the men who passed through here declared the trail from White Horse was the best winter way to Norman. There is plenty of game along the route for food and the going is easy, they said.

ASKS FOR DESTRUCTION OF MONUMENT

LINCOLN, Neb., July 13.—Pelham A. Harrows, national commander of the Sons of the American Revolution, is asking that the order the destruction of a small monument, reported to be in Troy, Ala., which contains an inscription honoring Wilkes Booth for the murder of Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Harrows stated that this was in accordance with resolution passed by a number of veterans' posts.

Has Been Removed
TROY, Ala., July 13.—A monument erected here in the 60's to the memory of John Wilkes Booth, was removed a few days ago by order of the town council. It was purchased by Pink Carter, a policeman, who made an effort to erect it on Court House square, but was denied permission and then placed it on his own premises whence it was removed recently.

FORCE VILLAGE HOSPITAL
The new hospital in Forge Village, conducted by the Abbot Worcester, has recently been equipped with a dental department, which will be in charge of Dr. Raymond of Boston. The hours of this department beginning next Friday will be as follows: Fridays, 1 p. m. to 5 p. m., Saturdays, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

paid to survivor. On Oct. 1, a month and a half later, Robert died. Certificate showed scarlet fever as cause. On Nov. 15 Lyda's daughter died. Scarlet fever was given as cause.

June 1917.—Married William G. McHaffie, place unknown. On June 12 McHaffie applied for $1000 insurance policy, payable to Lyda. Sixteen months later he died. Lyda reported flu and black diphtheria as cause. McHaffie's policy lapsed just before his death.

March 19, 1919.—Married Harlan C. Lewis. On June 14 Lewis applied for $5000 insurance policy. Twenty-six days later he died. The doctor's certificate said cause was acute gastroenteritis. Lyda collected the policy.

August 16, 1920.—Married Edward F. Meyer. Next day Meyer took out a policy for $10,000 and made a will bequeathing $12,000 worth of property to Lyda. Twenty-eight days later he died after an illness of a few days. Typhoid fever was given as the cause in doctors' certificates. Two attempts were made to collect the $10,000 policy but the money was held up.

November 25, 1920.—Married Paul Vincent Southard, her present husband, at Los Angeles. Telegraphic advices from Honolulu, where Mrs. Southard was arrested, say Southard stated he had applied for a $10,000 insurance policy, but that his application for so large a policy was rejected.

State's Statement
This is the unbiased record. This is what Prosecutor Frank L. Stephen has to add to it:

"We do not credit Mrs. Southard's claim that she thinks she is a typhoid carrier, and that it was this that may have caused her husbands' deaths. Regardless of what doctors' certificates showed, we have found proof of arsenic poisoning. What is more, all the men revealed the same symptoms, and they were not the symptoms of typhoid."

"We will claim that arsenic was obtained by an extracting process from fly-paper. And the evidence will show that quantities of fly paper were found hidden near where two of the men died."

Bodies Examined
After the state investigation was begun, the bodies were exhumed and scientific analyses made. Lyda approaches the climaxing chapter in her strange matrimonial serial cheerfully. Whatever her inner thoughts may be, she views the coming ordeal with outward calm. Physically she shows the strain, of course, but she greets callers and callers with a smile.

Worcester Veteran of First Division Feels as Fine as He Did Before the War

"My health is just as good now as it was before I joined the army," but I couldn't say that before I took 'Tannin' and 'Fred J. Lambert, 24 Francis street, Worcester, Mass. Mr. Lambert served during the late war with the 26th infantry, First Division, and was gassed four times.

"After I came home from France I found myself in a run down condition and suffering from indigestion. I worked along this for a long time. My appetite was entirely gone and I could hardly digest anything. I was so nervous I fairly trembled all over at times and at night I couldn't sleep and often got up out of my bed and walked the floor. I had terrible dizzy spells and mornings I got up with an awful headache, and feeling so weak I could hardly get on to my work. I went to my work every morning with almost no breakfast at all and even then I had that peculiar burning feeling right in the pit of my stomach for hours."

"One night I read a testimonial from someone who recommended Tannin so highly I decided to give it a trial. I am on my fifth bottle now and the improvement in my condition is simply wonderful. Now, I feel just like a new man, haven't a trace of any of my troubles left, and am eating, sleeping and feeling as well as I ever did in my life. Tannin certainly does the work."

Tannin is sold in Lowell by Green's drug store under the personal direction of a local Tannin representative, by Wright Drug Co., Haverhill, Mass., A. D. Falls, Chelmsford, Mass., Snow's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggist in every town.—Adv.

RAINBOW DIVISION IS TO HOLD CONVENTION

CLEVELAND, O., July 13.—The Rainbow Division, one of the most famous American divisions that participated in the world war, will open its second annual convention here tomorrow. Several thousand are expected to attend the three-day event. The Cleveland chapter will entertain 25 wounded Rainbow men still in hospitals.

The division was recruited from 26 states. The infantry regiments came from New York, Ohio, Alabama and Iowa, the artillery from Indiana, Illinois and Minnesota.

After training at Camp Mills, Long Island, the division sailed for France in October of 1917, the fourth division to arrive.

After three months of intensive training in France the men went into the trenches near Baccarat. From then on it was continuous heavy fighting and hardships at Champagne where the division was a stone wall against the great German offensive, from there to Chateau-Thierry salient, and then followed St. Mihiel, where in two days over 2000 prisoners were taken. The division was engaged in two important phases of the great Argonne-Meuse offensive and finally ended up at Sedan on Nov. 7.

From December, 1918, to April, 1919, its members wore the Arm of Occupation and finally arrived home in May, 1919.

Col. M. A. Tinley of Council Bluffs, Ia., is president of the division organization.

and, just at adjournment, David Stone-

man. Levenson's firm got $15,000, but of this $2500 was paid to Charles H. Innes and $4000 to Councillor Wright and $3000 to David Stonecham. These lawyers further divided among other lawyers.

Stress Number of Conferences

All of the lawyers who have testified so far have stressed the number of conferences that were necessary, and Mr. Wright avowed yesterday that the figure at one time was set as high as $250,000 as the sum necessary for the film men to pay to go free of danger, but finally Mr. Coakley engineered the settlement totalling $100,000.

Mr. Levenson explained the connection of former Attorney-General Henry C. Attwill with the case, saying that the latter and Councillor Wright were at the Copley-Plaza dinner, preceding the Mishawum Manor party, "and I thought that I might get a good suggestion from him." So, following the suggestion precipitated by Mayor Curley's summoning the "movie" men to the Touraine, and their subsequent interviews with Coakley and Tufts, Levenson escorted some of them to the state house to see Mr. Attwill, who recommended Mr. Wright. Mr. Wright was engaged and he recommended Innes.

Nothing Improper, Say Lawyers

In the cross-examination of all the lawyers who so far have gone on the stand, Fletcher Rannay, for the defense, has stressed questions leading to the conclusion that there really was nothing improper at the Manor party of March 8 and that all the attorneys in their visits to Dist. Atty. Tufts, must have claimed that their clients, the movie men, were absolutely guiltless of any act warranting criminal prosecution, so that Tufts may well have been impressed by their arguments against indictment.

The lawyer witnesses have fought shy of questioning by Mr. Hurlburt as to political influence, and Mr. Levenson would only say that it was "partly" because of Mr. Innes' broad acquaintance ance and prominence in political affairs that he was engaged. As for the connection of Mr. Tufts, these same lawyer witnesses, called by the commonwealth, have practically agreed that all that Tufts promised was that if it could be shown that the movie men were innocent he would not indict.

Mr. Wright Remembers

In indirect examination, Mr. Wright was induced to say, by Mr. Hurlburt, over the objections of the defense that he remembered, with the aid of a typewritten copy of an interview he had had with Atty.-Gen. Allen and Mr. Hurlburt, having said that he thought Mr. Innes a close political friend of Mr. Tufts. In re-examination, Mr. Wright admitted that he would not say that he recommended the employment of Mr. Innes because he was a close friend of Mr. Tufts.

Mr. Hurlburt, in the earlier examination, had brought out from Mr. Wright that he called on Tufts at the latter's Waltham home, and urged that as there was a civil suit pending against Mr. Zukor, according to the letter from Ayward, the secret indictment said to have been found against the movie men might well be held in abeyance, until the outcome of the civil suit; but "Mr. Tufts spoke in uncomplimentary terms of them, and their performances at Woburn, and said that men of this character could not come from New York to corrupt the morals of the community. He spoke of a special grand jury to consider the matter."

Asked About Getting $15

The feature of the testimony of Mrs. Teresa M. Robicheau was her declaration that she was taken to the office of Dist. Atty. Tufts by Silas Smith of the state police, then assigned to the Middlesex district, but since transferred, and that she asked Tufts about getting $15 owed to her by "Brownie" Kennedy for playing the piano. She said he replied that she need not worry; that he would get the money for her, and she wouldn't have to go to court. But she never has got the money, she added. She saw lists of men and girls who had been at Mishawum Manor, in the possession of the district attorney.

Her testimony as to the alleged orgy at the Manor was quite disappointing to the jury crowd which thronged not only the courtroom but the corridors, and even stood on the street curbing to catch a glimpse of her, for she denied that she saw anything improper, and also denied that she testified to anything of that sort in the lower court at Woburn, and denied giving any of the interviews printed in various papers as coming from her.

Was Quite Transformed

Mrs. Robicheau was quite transformed from the preceding day, when she had been on the stand only a few moments, then plainly dressed. Yesterday she was radiant in a brand new blue silk, with chile hat to match, with expensive ostrich feather, and string of small pearls and wrist watch.

She contradicted previous testimony by averring that Hiram Abrams, president of the Paramount Pictures company, and Asher and Golden, two other film men, stayed at the Manor all night, and she saw one of them awakened at about 9 a. m. to sign a check. Mr. Asher has testified that he paid the bill, which amounted to $1050, but it has been a race between all the movie men to place themselves moving back to Boston from the Manor at the hour nearest to 2 a. m.

Supposed to Be Sisters

She testified that she had met Asher and Golden at the Manor a week prior to the night of March 6. Bessie McDonald and the witness were supposed to be sisters, but there was no relationship.

Never Consulted Lawyer

She declared she never made any claim against any movie man and never consulted a lawyer about it. She knew Eva Lord at the Manor, but does not know whether she is married.

On cross-examination, the witness stated that she and Bessie were the only witnesses against "Brownie" Kennedy in the Woburn court, but the witness insisted that all she testified about was the $15 owed to her. She could not remember testifying at all about the party, nor whether Bessie so testified.

"But you knew Brownie was convicted?" asked Mr. Rannay.

"Yes."

"Didn't you say that as the party progressed some of the men grew rough and hugged and kissed the girls?"

"No."

Mrs. Robicheau averred that both she and Bessie were treated respectfully. So far as the witness knows, none of the men stayed with the girls, except that one stayed to see Brownie, and one was awakened at 8 or 9 o'clock to sign a paper. Bessie told the police where the liquor was hidden.

Didn't Give Names

She could not remember whether Bessie gave names of the men and girls to the police, but was sure she (the witness) did not. She had no recollection of saying it was a bad place. She didn't see any hugging or kissing.

Mrs. Robicheau shed tears when asked as to whether she was away "on a 10-day vacation," and subsequently admitted she was arrested Oct. 23, 1917, on Massachusetts avenue.

Officer Thomas A. Thompson of the state police testified that at the orders of Deputy Chief Neal he accompanied Councillor Wright May 22, 1917, to the office of James F. Ayward. He corroborated the councillor as to Ayward's ordering both visitors out on learning that the witness was a policeman. Ayward refused to give Wright the desired information as to the name of the man who was going to sue Zukor for alienation of his wife's affections, and declared according to the witness, that he would not give it if Wright "brought the whole state police force."

In round figures the yearly use of BITUMINOUS COAL for New England averages 25 MILLION TONS and of ANTHRACITE 12 MILLION TONS. Nearly all of this vast amount of coal with the exception of some six and one-half million tons used by the railroads might be eliminated through the use of

THEY SURE TREAT 'EM ROUGH IN AFGHANISTAN

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—If you want to keep 'em good you gotta marry 'em young.

That's the way they keep the young maidens from temptation in Afghanistan, according to Princess Fatima Sultan, member of the royal family of that country, who stopped here on her trip to England long enough to tell the mayor how to run a city.

"The women in our country are very, very good—they marry young," was one of her comments. "The pretty maidens of Afghanistan do not flirt—their faces are covered with veils."

FOR IMPROVEMENTS IN CENTRALVILLE

A committee appointed last Wednesday evening to draw up a working plan of activity for the newly organized Centralville Improvement association, will report this evening at a gathering of the body. The membership of the committee comprises: Dr. Michael A. Tighe, Thomas B. Delaney, and Rev. Karl P. Meier, the last being one of the founders of the association. Last week's meeting was held at the Greenhagen school, while the Varnum school will be the scene of tonight's gathering. The perfecting of a permanent organization, with the election of officers, will probably constitute the main part of this week's meeting.

AT 89 SHE FLIES OVER NEW YORK

MRS. C. J. GOFF

BY ALICE ROHR

NEW YORK, July 13.—Mrs. C. J. Goff, at 89, does all the work in her eight-room apartment here.

But only the early birds find her, for before most folks are up, she has her work done and is off on a shopping expedition.

I found her, after two unsuccessful attempts, at 7.30 a. m. She had been up for two hours.

Mrs. Goff is the mother of Fred H. Goff, Cleveland banker, who has just been named by President Harding to untangle the railroad snarl.

She lives alone—by choice.

"All my boys want me to spend the summers at their country places," she says, "but I can't stand the noise and confusion." Yet—

Mrs. Goff often packs up her trunks and sets off alone on a world tour. Japan, Africa, Europe—she knows them all. And a custom house full of pushing, shouting porters and examiners doesn't bother her at all.

Last fall she took an airplane trip over New York with a pilot from Astor Park. She got all the thrills of 2000 feet, dips and dives. And she said, when she landed:

"It didn't last long enough. I'm coming back for more."

Here's the philosophy that, at 89, helps to make her look 65 and act still ten years younger:

"If she has any. She believes meaningless conversation, like meaningless acquaintances, dissipate one's vitality."

THE WORLD'S HOTTEST JOB

ALICE CALHOUN AND SKETCH OF REFLECTORS BEING USED IN MAKING OUTDOOR MOVIES

BY MARIAN HALE

SOMEWHERE ON LONG ISLAND, N. Y., July 13.—The hottest job in the world? It's making movies "on location."

I have spent a day with Alice Calhoun, the Vitaphone star who is under contract to produce eight feature films this year.

We have motored to "location"—a wooded hollow off one of the main highways.

The temperature is around 100.

Not a breath of air is stirring.

At the bottom of the hollow is the set for a smuggler's cabin.

Director Edward Jose is putting Joe Striker, the leading man, and Dick Lee, the smuggler, through rehearsal of a fight.

Five times they fight a battle down the stairs from the loft of the cabin.

"Camera!"

The sixth battle was to be the real one as well as the reel one.

Crash. The fighting men slipped and fell 12 steps together. At the bottom they continued to pummel and claw each other till the director called time.

Jose wasn't satisfied. The fall was too sudden. He wanted a fight step by step down the stairs.

The gladiators—soaked with perspiration, scratched and limping—had to do it over.

As they reached the bottom Miss Calhoun's part called for her to rush in, press a pipe against the back of the smuggler's head and cry, "Hands up, or I'll shoot!"

More rehearsal.

"Camera!"

All the pictures are made under the glare of a battery of reflectors which throw the sun's rays full in the faces of the actors.

A thermometer hung before the rays of these reflectors showed a temperature of 140 degrees.

A star earns her $1000 a week on location in the summer time.

BODY OF CHELMSFORD HERO ON WAY HOME

Word has been received in the effect that the body of Fritz Albertson W. Vinal, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Vinal of North Chelmsford, who was killed in action in France June 16, 1918, has arrived in New York and will be shipped home immediately. Out of respect for the deceased, the Chelmsford town of the American legion, which was to conduct a big carnival at the Centre village tomorrow evening, has postponed the event to a later date.

A half-billion candlepower searchlight, whose rays can be seen 10 miles away, is being installed on Mt. Tamalpais, near San Francisco.

An elephant sheds his molars six or seven times in a lifetime.

May Confer With Prime Minister Alone

ACCEPTANCE BY THREE NATIONS

Britain, France and Italy to Participate in Parley on Disarmament

Japan Not on Record But Believed She Will Favor Proposal

LONDON, July 13.—Three of the principal allied nations, Great Britain, France and Italy, have officially signified their acceptance of President Harding's invitation to hold a conference on limitation of armaments, while China has indicated her readiness to participate in a conference relative to far eastern questions. Japan is the only one of the allies which has not placed herself on record as being ready to take part in the Washington conference, but it is expected in official circles here that her acceptance will be communicated to the United States government soon.

In government circles in this city it appears to be the consensus of opinion that the meeting at Washington will be attended by some of the most prominent statesmen of the world. The announcement of Premier Briand of France that he would consider going to Washington followed indications that Prime Minister George might also go, provided conditions in Great Britain are such as to permit his extended absence from the country. It is probable, however, that some of the leading figures in British official life will be present. Among those mentioned as delegates are A. J. Balfour, lord president of the council; Lord Lee of Fareham, first lord of the admiralty; Sir Laming Worthington Evans, secretary of state for war; Admiral Lord Beatty, and Viscount Grey.

Advices from Paris state that the commission for reducing of armaments appointed by the League of Nations will probably hold only a brief session in that city on Saturday.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children

In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

LIST OF SIGNATURES IS CAREFULLY COMPILED

"One of the most accurate and carefully compiled list of signatures I have ever seen," was the way Chairman Hugh C. McOsker of the board of election commissioners today characterized the initiative petition, asking that the law which will allow labor unions to be sued to be set aside until the people have a chance to vote on the matter, which was submitted last week to the commission to have the signatures checked.

The petition was signed by 740 local labor men and the signatures were collected under the direction of Timothy P. O'Rourke, president of the Lowell Trades & Labor council. Out of that entire number of signatures only six names, or less than one per cent, were found to be incorrect. This is considered a remarkable record because on most petitions which come to the election commission anywhere from 20 to 25 per cent of the signatures are thrown out. The unusual accuracy in the labor petition was the result of Mr. O'Rourke's personal efforts in checking the names himself.

SUBURBAN DAY

Many Visitors Take Advantage of Special Bargains

Today was Suburban day in Lowell and despite the warm weather, hundreds of residents of the towns surrounding Lowell came in to take advantage of the many bargains offered by local merchants. Police officers stationed in the downtown district said that there were many more people on the streets than on the ordinary Wednesday and every store did a brisk business especially during the forenoon hours.

The ranks of the suburbanites were swelled by hundreds of Lowell people who took the opportunity to buy vacation articles and summer necessities at prices far below normal as advertised in last evening's editions of The Sun.

WIFE IS ACQUITTED ON THEFTING CHARGE

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., July 13.—Mrs. Theresa Marabelli of Bellport was acquitted in county court today of stealing $10 from her husband's trousers.

She took the money while her husband was asleep and went to New York. A justice of the peace sentenced her to four months in jail, but when the news spread the married women of the community hired a lawyer to appeal the case.

Judge Furman ruled that the old common law, that a married woman cannot steal from her husband applied in the case.

General Smuts May Be Temporary Chairman of Coming Conference—Believed Final Decision On Questions May Be Made in Dublin

LONDON, July 13.—By the Associated Press.—The first meeting between Premier Lloyd George and Eamonn de Valera, will be held at 4.30 p. m., Thursday at No. 10 Downing street, the prime minister's official residence, it was announced at Sinn Fein headquarters this afternoon. It is inferred that the conference is to be between these two men alone.

Rioting occurred in Vere street in Belfast this afternoon, says a Central News despatch from Belfast. Two constables were injured and three civilians were taken to a hospital suffering from gunshot wounds. Final preparations for the meeting of Eamonn de Valera, Irish republican leader, and Prime Minister Lloyd George, to be held here tomorrow, were being made by the government and the Irish delegation today.

British Officials Ready

British officials who have been closely associated with Irish affairs during the recent past were said today to be prepared to join in discussions with the Sinn Fein delegation headed by Mr. De Valera, and it was thought possible that General J. C. Smuts, premier of the union of South Africa, would play a very definite role in the negotiations that would take place. General Smuts has been considered the man chiefly responsible for the rapid development of peace moves in Ireland, and late last week, it was said he might act as temporary chairman of the coming conference. Mr. De Valera and his colleagues spent last night at a hotel with friends in this city. During the evening, there was a meeting of Sinn Fein sympathizers, at which it is assumed the situation was quite thoroughly canvassed.

Reports from Ireland indicate the truce arranged which became effective at noon last Monday, was being observed. The observance of "Orange day" in Belfast, yesterday, was not attended by any violence.

Decided in Dublin

Irishmen closely in touch with the Sinn Fein declare the question whether there is to be peace or continuation of the war in Ireland will be decided in Dublin. Mr. De Valera and his colleagues will listen attentively to any suggestion made by the British premier or other British statesmen in London and will discuss freely with them the way to a settlement, but the Irish parliament, these Irishmen say, will decide whether any of the proposed solutions are acceptable to the Irish people.

Mr. De Valera will reply to all proposals for the retention of Ireland within the empire. It is declared that he remains a republican but being also a democrat, he must leave it to the people he represents to choose the course they desire to follow.

Mr. Lloyd George went to his country home, Chequers Court, today, accompanied by members of his staff. It is understood he will see those some of the cabinet members and prepare his introductory remarks for the meeting with De Valera here tomorrow.

Kidnaped Earl

CORK, July 13.—The Earl of Bandon, who was kidnapped by Sinn Fein men early on the morning of June 21 was brought back to Bantry last night by his captors. The aged earl, for whose safety there had been some concern at various times, was uninjured.

Since the kidnapping, a constant search for the earl had been kept up. The Earl of Bandon has long been prominent in County Cork, having been the king's lieutenant of the county since 1874. At the time the earl was kidnapped his home, Castle Bernard, was set on fire and virtually destroyed. The raiders looted Lady Bandon and the servants in a room adjoining the stables and they were not injured. The earl owns about 41,000 acres of land.

Irish Police Leave

DUBLIN, July 13.—(By the Associated Press).—Large bodies of police auxiliary men, as a consequence of the truce in Ireland, have been granted indefinite leave of absence. The first batch of the auxiliaries has already left for England.

BUILDING PERMIT

The French Consulate at Lowell has been granted a permit by the building inspector to erect an $800 addition for new bedrooms at its residence at 537 Moody street. The work is to be done by Arthur Rodolphe.

Airplanes in their flight to the oil fields of Fort Norman so frightened the Indians that it was with difficulty they could be prevented from shooting at the "devil birds." At one settlement the entire populace took to the woods.

Patato flour is again being shipped from Holland to the United States in large quantities.

BECOMES HYSTERICAL AS TRIAL PROCEEDS

CLEVELAND, July 13.—Mrs. Eva Kaber went into a hysterical faint soon after court opened here this morning while her brother, Charles Brickel, was testifying in her behalf in the trial in which she is charged with murdering her husband, Daniel F. Kaber. She screamed hysterically and fell to the floor. She was carried out by halliffs.

Excitement among the women spectators was intense. The crowds did not calm down until Judge Maurice Bernon had admonished all to keep their seats.

Court bailiffs immediately seized Mrs. Kaber when she began to scream but she wriggled out of their grasp and soon was prostrate on the floor.

WILL REPAIR PLAIN STREET BRIDGE

The maintenance and way department of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad will begin repairs on the Plain street bridge, which was ordered closed more than a week ago by City Engineer Stephen Kearney because of its dangerous condition. City Solicitor William D. Regan has received assurances that the superintendent of maintenance of the Old Colony division of the road will be instructed to have the necessary repairs made at once. If there is material at hand, work will begin immediately; if it is not on hand, it will be secured within a week and then work will start.

City Engineer Kearney had received several complaints about the bridge being closed but the assurances received at city hall today would indicate that there will be no further delay. The city is ready to remark the bridge as soon as the railroad repairs the understructure.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR SPECIAL ELECTION

Definite arrangements for the special election to be held here Tuesday, Aug. 3, on the petition of the chamber of commerce that street construction here be done by contract, will be made by the election commission at a meeting to be held this evening. The commission has received its instructions from the municipal council to prepare for the coming election and it will set to work at once after its plan of campaign is arranged tonight.

SHOOTING GOES ON IN BELFAST STREETS

BELFAST, July 13.—A shooting occurred during curfew time last evening in the North Queen street area, and the police summoned the military to assist in clearing the streets. At 5 o'clock this morning a shot was fired at two members of the police who were standing at a street corner.
